AMERICANS MAY BE CUT OFF

From Debarkation Port At Vladivostok By Bolsheviki Reported To Surround City—Are Not Equipped For Battle.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—War department officials were today seriously concerned over reports that the Bolshevik armies have isolated Vladivostok and were apprehensive lest this would seriously delay the evacuation of the American troops in Siberia.

Official reports as to conditions were anxiously awaited.

If the Bolsheviks have completely surrounded Vladivostok, it is believed here that American and Czecho-Slovak troops will either have to fight their way through or will be cut off from the port of departure for a long period.

The war department is concerned lest the isolation of Vladivostok may mean battle between American troops and the Bolsheviks, for they pointed out that the troops which are drawing toward Vladivostok are not properly equipped to give battle, but are prepared practically for debarkation.

Advices as to just how many troops have already reached Vladivostok are meager, and it was stated today that it may be that a large part of the American troops have already been concentrated in that port and if there are but a few left in the interior they may be routed across country to some other port.

LINES TIGHTEN IN TREATY BATTLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—With another, and perhaps final, battle over the treaty of Versailles brewing in the scarred and war-torn senate sector here, the smashing attack of the Republicans upon the Democratic stronghold of the third congressional district of Missouri, where the treaty is also the issue, may be obliged to thunder on with some of its heaviest artillery missing.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who was to have added the crash of his forty-two centimeter voice to the fray, today announced that this is now practically out of the question, owing to the situation here. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, who has been speaking in that region, leaves today for Washington where he will arrive tomorrow to be ready for any emergency which might arise over the treaty.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, called home on important business, will hurry back to his post of duty. He will be on hand by the end of the week at the latest and any idea he might have had of lending his support to Missouri democracy in the St. Valentine's day election must now be abandoned unless another of those lightning and well known changes in the treaty fight takes place meantime.

The voting in Missouri, it is pretty attached to the contest in the third district of Missouri, where a successor to Joshua W. Alexander, Democratic representative in congress, is to be chosen on February 14, the sudden shift of the treaty situation here throws it into partial eclipse.

The voting in Missouri, it is pretty generally conceded, will give a fairly accurate indication of how the voting will go next November. If a Republican is returned to congress from this district, usually Democratic, the Republicans will claim the national campaign is all over but the shouting. They will also claim that their fight against the treaty has been vindicated. If, on the other hand, the Democrats win by a larger majority than usual, they will treat it as a victory for the administration and its policies and a condemnation of the opposition party.

JOHNSON SUED

In New Action by Heads of New York Yankees.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—The legal battle between Colonels Ruppert and Huston, owners of the Yankees, and Ban Johnson, president of the American League, has been reopened by the New York owners who have instituted a new action against the league head. The Yankee suits now pending in local courts ask for damages to the extent of $150,000. Ruppert and Huston have three specific complaints. They charge that Johnson attempted to influence the New York Nationals to refuse them permission to play on the Polo Grounds and that he has conspired with five other clubs to drive them from baseball. In a third suit the Yankees seek to restrain Johnson from paying himself a salary from the league's treasury for compensation as president, secretary or treasurer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—Thirty-two of the country's best squash tennis players are named today in the draw from the annual national championship tournament which opens Saturday at the Columbia Club. Jay Gould, J. W. Apple, Eric A. Winston, H. R. Mussell, Royal Riggs, G. M. Rushmore and Anderson Hare are among the entrants.

MUST HAVE NEW PLATES FEB. 15

That Is Final Date For Autoists Says Hugo—10,000 Applications A Day Handled By His Office In Final Rush For Licenses.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 3.—Realizing the importance of the motor vehicle to almost every phase of life these days, Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo has announced that automobiles will be allowed to run with last year's plates until February 15, at which time new plates will be absolutely necessary. This two weeks' extension will permit many cars to operate that might temporarily be tied up, with more or less inconvenience to business. In the last four weeks, out of the 570,000 cars that were registered in New York state last year, about two-thirds have been re-registered, affording some idea of the immense volume of business transacted.

This has frequently resulted in more than 10,000 letters being received by Mr. Hugo in a single day, while in New York and Buffalo, there have been long lines of waiting applicants. Those who applied for their plates during the first three weeks in January were quickly accommodated, but those who waited until the last hour found themselves with many thousands of others caught in the unprecedented jam of mail.

Motor vehicle departments in adjoining states have been notified by Mr. Hugo of the extension of time that has been granted in this state.

Apparently, motorists have had little difficulty in figuring out this year's registration fee. The registration itself has revealed a number of interesting things. Judging from the number who state their intention of attaching a box or similar contrivance to their machine this year, so that it can be used for both pleasure and commercial purposes, a concerted effort will be seen this summer in all parts of the state to supply markets with a larger and more varied assortment of garden truck than ever before. This is particularly true in the vicinity of cities and the larger villages, and will serve to cut down the operating cost of the car on one hand, and to bring about a downward influence in price of foodstuffs on the other.

CRAZED MOTHER DROWNS CHILD

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Salem, Mass, Feb. 3.—While irrational from a nervous ailment, Mrs. Guido Allaro attempted to murder her three children and commit suicide today.

Carrying her three months old baby in her arms and her three year old daughter and six year old son trailing at her skirts, the demented mother went to Congress street bridge, spanning South River, and pushed the little girl Lena, into the icy waters. Then she tried to throw her boy into the water, but he escaped and ran screaming to his home.

Mrs. Allaro, with the infant clasped to her breast, then jumped into the water. Lena was found dead when rescued. Mrs. Allaro and infant were taken from the water in a serious condition. They are now in a hospital and may die.

The husband was absent, being at a nearby drug store securing medicine for his wife, when the tragedy occurred.

GIVES UP WIFE

To Younger Rival After Trapping Them at Hotel.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—After trapping his pretty young bride in a hotel with the son of his oldest friend, George L. Bradshaw, wealthy restaurateur and many years her senior, today refused to prosecute her and announced he would give her up to his younger rival, Raymond Kerwin, 21 years old.

"She's just a little flower, and she's faded from my life now," he said. "I hope she will be very happy with him. But I didn't think the son of my oldest friend would treat me this way."

In a police station where the couple were taken following their arrest, Young Kerwin offered to marry the girl "as soon as this is all over." Bradshaw is expected to file a divorce suit so that Kerwin's promise may be kept.

Peggy Hopkins Married.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—Peggy Hopkins, motion picture and musical comedy actress, has been married to J. Stanley Joyce, of Chicago, at Miami, Fla., according to word reaching her friends here today. Mrs. Hopkins was reported just recently divorced from Sherburn Hopkins, Jr., of Washington.

Trinity Dinner.

The menu to be served at the dinner to be given by the ladies of Trinity M. E. Church from 5 to 8 on Friday, February 6, will be as follows: Chicken pie, mashed potatoes, green beans, home canned, cabbage salad, celery, jelly, cake, ice cream, coffee.

BARGE TERMINAL BILL IN AGAIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 3 (Special)—Barge canal terminals at Newburgh, Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers are again proposed in a bill introduced last night by Senator Walton. The measure carries an appropriation of $1,839,000 for the purpose specified. It is provided in the measure, however, that no construction work shall be undertaken in any city, nor any of the money appropriated until a site for the terminal has been secured.

Last year a bill carrying an appropriation for the purchase of the four sites in the cities specified, was passed but was vetoed by Governor Smith.

NEW DISORDERS IN IRELAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 3.—Renewed activity by the British military authorities at Dublin, during which the soldiers are said to have charged a crowd and bayoneted a boy, was reported from the Irish capital today.

A number of army trucks, bearing soldiers, passed through the streets of Dublin, during the early part of the night. Crowds jeered the troops and became so boisterous that soldiers alighted and made a bayonet charge. It was then that a boy was attacked and stabbed. Later on the soldiers again charged the crowds with fixed bayonets several times.

In retaliation for the widespread raids on Saturday, Sinn Feiners attacked the principal police depot at Dublin and seized a large quantity of arms.

Vigorous demands are being made by the Sinn Feiners for the release of Lord Mayor Kelly of Dublin and it is expected that he will be liberated this week.

JANITOR'S WAGE EXCEEDS TEACHERS

Kingston, N. Y., Jan. 31, 1920.
Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—The timely article in Friday's Freeman puts the case of the teachers very clearly. The public evidently does not realize their serious plight.

The increase in living expenses has been recognized and provided for in the case of nearly everybody employed by our city. The teachers asked for an increase of $100 from January 1, but were told that there were no funds available. The janitors asked for and were granted an increase of $240. At present, no teacher below the eighth grade receives more than $800, while some of the janitors are getting $1,080 per year.

Unfortunately most teachers are absolutely dependent upon their salary as a livelihood, and owing to increased expenses are unable to save anything at all for the long summer vacation—no money from June 30 to October 1. How can they fail to be in a state of constant worry and apprehension?

Girls and boys in the sixth and seventh grades are leaving school and are now receiving more money than are teachers who have served more than fifteen years. There seems to be something radically wrong that this state of affairs should exist.

Now, if ever, education should be emphasized as one of the bulwarks of our republic.

During the "great war" a great deal was said about the morale of the army. What about the morale of the teaching force? Can they carry on their work with courage and spirit when constantly harassed by financial worry and a feeling that their efforts are not appreciated as shown by the lack of consideration too often expressed?

Can Kingston afford to economize at the expense of the men and women of the future? JUSTICE.

CLEMENCEAU SAILS

"The Tiger," Out of Public Life, Goes to Egypt.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Marseilles, Feb. 3.—Former Premier Clemenceau, who is taking his first real vacation since the beginning of the war, arrived here from Paris today and will sail for Egypt at 4 o'clock on the steamship Lotus. M. Clemenceau has definitely retired from public life and he declared that he would devote his declining years to literature and study. He said he may not write his memoirs, as he had originally planned, but might content himself with a series of general studies and sketches.

Berlin Reds Raided.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—More than 100 alleged Bolsheviks have been arrested in a series of raids in Berlin suburbs during the past forty-eight hours. In one raid the soldiers and police seized five army truck loads of literature and fighting materials.

BENEDICTINE ANNUAL MEETING

President Hickey of Board Announces Officers and Staff For This Year—Secretary Eastman's Annual Report.

The annual meeting of the board of directors and staff of the Benedictine Sanitarium was held January 27 at 10 a. m. The Rev. John J. Hickey, president of the board of directors, presided. After the reading and approval of the minutes of the last annual meeting the president announced the following officers and members of the staff for the coming year:

Chief of Staff, Dr. Mark O'Meara.
Secretary, Dr. Frank L. Eastman.
Attending Surgeons—Drs. Mark O'Meara, Wm. J. O'Leary, Frank L. Eastman, John J. O'Leary, George F. Wilklow and John F. Larkin.
Attending Physicians—Drs. Christopher Keefe, H. P. Van Wagenen, W. E. E. Little, B. W. Gifford, Fred Voss, Hugh Chidester, Wm. Thayer, M. B. Downer, E. E. Billings, John C. Kamp.
Surgeon: Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, Dr. William J. Cranston.
Gynecologist, Dr. Mary Gage-Day.
Neurologist, Dr. Roger Dexter.
Dentist, Dr. Samuel Levitas.
Training School Committee—Drs. Mary Gage Day, B. W. Gifford and F. L. Eastman.

The annual report for the year ending December 31, 1919, was submitted as follows:

Patients remaining December 31, 1918	19
Patients admitted during year	598
Patients treated during the year	652
Children born	35
Surgical cases	359
Medical cases	204
Obstretical cases	35
Male patients	261
Female patients	337
Children	88
Number of days work, total	9388
Number of days work, free	1459
Clinical cases	10
Surgical deaths	16
Medical deaths	28
Obstetrical deaths	1
Premature birth	1
Still birth	1
Moribund patients	7

Miss Jeannette Farrell, R. N., reported for the training school that on January 1st, 1920, we have seven (7) seniors, two (2) juniors and two (2) intermediate nurses, making a total of 11.

We expect two (2) more to enter in January.

During 1919, we have graduated two (2) nurses and there will be a total class of nine (9) for graduation in 1920.

The nurses have had lecture courses as per schedule of the state department of education.

During the year, 1919, we have received $7,500 from the War Chest and we wish to express to the War Chest committee and the public of Ulster county your sincere thanks for this donation.

Realizing that we are faced with another epidemic of influenza, we have been in communication with the board of health and as soon as the need arises, the Knights of Columbus building will be immediately opened for a contagious hospital and the staff of the Benedictine Sanitarium have offered their services to care for these cases.

The building committee reports $10,832.13 in the building fund, and suggest that now, that the war is over and materials can be obtained, we proceed to carry out our original plans for the needed improvements to the institution, provided the necessary money can be obtained.

A motion was made and carried that the board of managers and staff of the Benedictine have a campaign this year to raise the necessary amount; that John Mahar be asked to act as chairman of campaign committee.

FRANK L. EASTMAN, M. D.,
Secretary.

FLU CASES NOW NUMBER 265

Thirty-four new cases of flu were reported this morning to the board of health bringing the total number since the outbreak up to 265 in Kingston. All physicians having patients ill with the flu that are in need of nursing attention are requested to get in touch with the board of health and nurses will be supplied.

Disaster Land Army.

A petition has been filed with Judge Platzek in the Supreme Court, New York, by Stetson, Jennings & Russell to dissolve the Women's Land Army, Inc. The reason given is that the organization has finished its work with the ending of the war. Society women were prominently identified with the movement. The Women's Land Army came into being during the early stages of American participation in the war in order to take the places of farmers called to the conflict. Branches were established in practically every state none of which will continue to function.

Gas Killed Six.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 3.—Six men were found dead from gas poisoning today in a room in a small Market street hotel. Three bodies were in one bed, two in another bed and one was upon a cot.

MOVIE CONFERENCE HEARS REPORT

Mayor Canfield Given Added Duties in Convention With Special Committee.

At a conference of the motion picture regulation committee appointed by Mayor Walter W. Stone of Syracuse, president of the New York State Mayors' Conference, Monday, the four sub-committees submitted their reports. The meeting took place in the city hall, Albany.

These committees were selected to investigate the various phases of the motion picture industry for the purpose of determining whether legislation is necessarily tending toward a censorship of the motion picture films of the state.

Following the discussion of the reports filed by the sub-committees a committee was appointed to draft a further report, to be presented at the next meeting. This committee will include Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston, W. W. Nicholson, commissioner of public safety of Syracuse, and the Rev. C. O. Judkins of Glens Falls.

The committee will draft a report and recommendations based upon the findings of the four sub-committees, which will be filed at the next meeting of the general committee, to take place in Albany the middle of the month.

W. H. VAN SLYKE VICE-CHAIRMAN

Of Local Red Cross Succeeding Frank Coykendall—Headquarters to Be Secured—$300 a Month Voted For Home Service and Two Nurses to Be Secured to Aid Needy Who Have "Flu."

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross held on Monday afternoon at the supreme court chambers, Mrs. T. J. Hickey, third vice-chairman, presided and considerable very important business was transacted. Those present were Frank Coykendall, first vice-chairman; Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, secretary; E. E. Dougherty, treasurer; Rev. John J. Hickey, Mrs. C. Gordon Reel, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, Dr. Mark O'Meara and Dr. Mary Gage-Day. Frank Coykendall having presented his resignation as first vice-chairman, W. H. Van Slyke was elected to the office made vacant by Mr. Coykendall's resignation.

Inasmuch as the lease of the former headquarters on Broadway expired some time ago, and the chapter is now without headquarters, a committee was appointed to procure a desirable office.

The treasurer was directed to transmit to the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross the sum of $11,000, Ulster county's quota to be so sent from the sum raised in the recent Red Cross Christmas membership drive.

The treasurer was also authorized to finance the home service section of the Red Cross to the extent of $300 a month, and Judge Joseph M. Fowler, chairman of this committee was authorized to hire autos for the use of this department when needed for Red Cross work.

Mrs. E. Bogardus DuBois of Wallkill was appointed a member of the executive committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. G. E. Halliday of Wallkill.

Action was taken looking toward the securing of two registered nurses to visit those ill with influenza needing care and instruction in the prevention of the spread of the disease, where otherwise the families would be unable to secure such nursing service.

Dr. Mark O'Meara was made chairman of what will be known as the "Disaster-Preparedness Committee."

The secretary announced that all finished articles or clothing should be sent as soon as possible, and until further notice to Mrs. C. W. Hasbrouck, No. 54 Main street. It was also stated that 225 of the chemises for Belgium girls had been completed and sent to the Red Cross supply service in New York city.

Two sewing machines have been loaned to the Kingston City Hospital.

There has been so many inquiries regarding the wa. service badges, that the chapter announces that while the Red Cross locally, in the state, and in the nation fully appreciates every bit of war service rendered, the ruling has been made that only those who actually did 500 hours service a year will be given the service badges.

Proposed Constitution.

Owing to an error in Monday evening's Freeman it was not made clear that it was Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck who prepared the carefully thought out and exceptionally workable constitution and by-laws for the board of managers of the Home for the Aged. It is desirable that this correction should be made both as a matter of history and in recognition of Judge Hasbrouck's appreciated services.

Improving Herzog Store.

The paint store of Matthew H. Herzog at 332 Wall street is being remodeled and altered to meet the increasing business of that firm. In addition to paint and wall paper Mr. Herzog had added a line of automobile tires and tubes and motor supplies.

GOVERNOR'S FOLKS HAVE THE FLU

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Governor Smith, confined to the executive mansion with throat trouble, today cancelled his engagement to attend the annual charity ball in New York. Lieutenant-Governor Harry C. Walker will go in his place. Mrs. Smith, who is suffering with influenza, was slightly improved today, but the governor's two daughters, Misses Emily and Kathryn, were suffering with mild forms of disease.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss H. Lenora Gunung and Stanley F. Hoornbeck, both of Arkville were quietly married yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parsonage of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church by the Rev. G. M. Cranston. After a wedding trip to New York they will make their home in Arkville.

Jones-Davis.

Troge Jones of No. 79 Broadway and Miss Mary Davis of No. 18 Hanratty street were united in marriage Monday evening at the home of the bride by the Rev. A. L. Hughes, pastor of St. Mark's A. M. E. Church on Foxhall avenue. The attendants were Mrs. Bella Bailey and John Z. Smith.

Johnston-Simpson.

Matthew T. Johnston of Newburgh and Miss Josephine A. Simpson of No. 55 East Pierpont street were united in marriage on Sunday at the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Delaware avenue by the pastor, the Rev. Francis Lesniewski. They were attended by Peter Simpson and Helen Johnston.

Monday Club.

This week the members of the Monday Club met with Mrs. Kenyon and Miss Munn had the paper for the day, her subject being "Cathedrals—Notre Dame de Rouen, St Maclov, Ouen." After the very interesting paper there was a discussion of next year's subject for study. The club will meet next week again with Mrs. Kenyon.

D. A. R. Meeting.

The regular meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., will be held at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon of this week at 3 o'clock, with the local board meeting preceding it at 2 o'clock. The afternoon's program will include an address by the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, and piano selections by Miss Helen Westbrook. The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Richard Tappen and Miss Beulah Smith.

The Soikanishade Club.

This week the Soikanishade Club met with Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen at her home on John street, the meeting being in the evening. Mrs. Van Wagenen had an especial comprehensive and informing paper covering the subject, "Argentina—the United States of South America," which was to have been given by Mrs. S. J. Hines, who has left Kingston, and her own subject, "Argentina in the Twentieth Century." This paper was followed by a reading, "South America—Observations and Impresions," given by Mrs. George Styles, Jr. The club will meet next Monday afternoon with Mrs. Niles at her home on Smith avenue.

Supervisor Ineligible.

Because James H. Russell, supervisor from the Town of Fishkill, Dutchess county, held an elective office prior to the time he was chosen supervisor, he has been declared ineligible for the latter position and another man will be named in his place. Mr. Russell was a member of the school board of the Town of Fishkill.

Rumors of Mary Powell Sale.

There are street rumors that the Mary Powell, berthed at the Sam Foxer dock in the Rondout creek, has been resold by the junk dealers who bought her. It was said that former Alderman John A. Fischer had bought her. This morning over the telephone Mr. Fischer stated he had not bought the steamer.

Naturalization Day Today.

Final action upon petitions for naturalization of aliens to be admitted to be citizens of the United States was taken this afternoon before Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck at the court house. An unusually large number of aliens appeared for their final examination and admission as citizens.

Parish Dance.

There will be a big dance this evening at the school hall of the Immaculate Conception Church, Foxhall avenue. Carl Shaffer's orchestra will play for dancing.

PLAN TO TAKE CARE OF TOURISTS

Chamber of Commerce to Compile Lists of Residents With Rooms for Transients Where Hotels May Send Surplus Guests.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce special committee on summer trade and tourist development, held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday evening, there was a preliminary discussion of work to be done and the facts developed showed that there was little use in inducing tourists to come to Kingston and then having them sleep in their cars, as often happened last summer.

It was thought that there may be many residents who have one or more spare rooms in their houses that they would be willing to rent to lodgers in the summer, thus enabling the city to care for many tourists who would be of great benefit to the city. With a view of ascertaining just what can be done along this line a sub-committee was appointed to make an appeal through the newspapers to all who have rooms they would be willing to rent to transients during the comming summer to register with the Chamber of Commerce. The lists thus obtained would be supplied to the hotels and could be used in finding places for the overflow.

An advertisement to this effect, containing a blank to be filled and sent in, will appear later in the newspapers. Should this plan work out it would enable the hotels to take care of many more tourists and prevent Kingston being practically blacklisted for its want of accommodations during the tourist season.

FLAG WAVES AT NEWBERRY TRIAL

Defense Compares Senator's War Record With That of Ford and Says No Newberry Money Was Spent—Says His Backers Could Spend Without Limit Under Michigan Law.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 3.—Sounding "Americanism" as the keynote of the defense, Judge James O. Murfin fired the opening broadside today in behalf of Senator Newberry and his 122 co-defendants charged with vote frauds, by launching an open attack on Henry Ford and his peace propaganda.

After citing the war situation in Europe, when Newberry versus Ford senatorial campaign was on——"a time when the German armies were 30 miles from Paris and the fate of the civilized world was hanging in the balance,"——Judge Murfin declared:

"Rightly or wrongly, many people remember Henry Ford's campaign against being prepared for this awful catastrophe. They remembered his well meant but misguided efforts to bring about what now appears would have been a German peace. They remembered that he was not active in the war and that none of his family had become so. And so remembering, there was a very general feeling that Mr. Ford did not represent the type of an American who, at that critical juncture, should represent this state in the U. S. senate."

Judge Murfin then detailed Senator Newberry's war record, recalling that his brother and two sons were in the navi service, and that the senator himself, as a lieutenant commander in the navy, entered the race against Ford, "with reluctance despite repeated urging and following a determination that it was his duty to do so."

Declaring that the Newberry campaign was highly organized and even terming it the "most perfect organization ever put together," Judge Murfin held that this was necessary under the circumstances.

"It was necessary because Commander Newberry was running against the most advertised man in America," he hurled at judge and jury.

Entering a complete denial that Senator Newberry contributed money to his campaign fund, Judge Murfin asserted that "not one dollar of his money was ever handled by anyone," and Newberry backers, he declared, were prompted "not by pay but by patriotism, not by avarice but by Americanism."

At the beginning of his address, Judge Murfin described in detail the offense with which Senator Newberry and his political retainers are charged. He made the point that under the Michigan law, so long as campaign expenses come within eleven enumerated classes in the statute, there is no limit as to the amount of money that committees may spend in behalf of candidates.

"Before I am through," he said, "I will point out to you everything that was done by anybody connected with this campaign. I want to impress on you that this campaign was an unusually hot one, and that in analyzing what those respondents did, the atmosphere under which they did it, must be considered."

Lecture On Greek Art.

The Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady will deliver the postponed lecture on "Greek Art," at the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street on the evening of Wednesday, February 18th. The lecture will be illustrated and will be especially interesting and instructive.

IRWIN WARNS TAX PAYERS

A word of warning to income tax payers is contained in a statement given out today by Internal Revenue Collector, Roscoe Irwin, who points out that returns must show all items of taxable income for 1919.

"Guesswork, estimates, and other hit-or-miss tactics are barred when a person is making out his income tax return. Accuracy and completeness must be insisted upon. And remember, the return is a sworn statement, as such, it must be thorough and accurate.

Salaried persons and wage-earners must not confine their returns to figures showing a year's pay at so much a day or so much a week. The actual amount drawn should be ascertained and reported. Overtime, bonuses, shares in the profits of a business, value of quarters and board furnished by the employer, and a number of other items of similar nature which are compensations for services, are taxable as part of the year's earnings, and must be included.

It must be born in mind that compensation may be paid in other forms than in cash. A bonus paid in Liberty Bonds is taxable at the market value of the bonds. A note received in payment for services is taxable income at its face value, and the interest upon it is also taxable.

Premiums paid by an employer for life or other insurance in favor of employes is additional compensation to the employes.

The income tax does not apply to amounts received under accident and health insurance, or under workmen's compensation laws; and the damages recovered by suit of settlement for injuries or sickness is also exempt.

Tips received by waiters, porters and others are taxable income for such donations are in recognition of services and are not gifts.

A pension paid by an employer or by the U. S. Government is taxable income. A widow who received payments in recognition of the services of her late husband, may construe such payments as gifts.

Aside from what a person may earn by his services, there are many other sources of income. He must include in his annual reckoning the gains he made in business and other ventures; also the income that his money and property earned.

Where Vicks Began

The Drug Store in which O. Henry Spent His Boyhood

This is the drug store in Greensboro, N. C., purchased by Mr. Lunsford Richardson in 1886 from Dr. Porter. Dr. Porter was the uncle of "Will" Porter, who, under the nom-de-plume of O. Henry, became America's greatest short story writer. O. Henry practically grew up in this store and learned here the profession of pharmacy.

It was during his years behind the prescription counter of this drug store that Mr. Richardson worked out the formula for Vicks.

Druggists have stock today but a shortage may come at any time. Last winter druggists in many sections were out of Vicks for months

How the Use of this External Treatment for Cold Troubles Has Grown

MORE than a score of years ago, Lunsford Richardson, a druggist in a little North Carolina town, was trying to find a new way to treat spasmodic croup and colds. He had been trying to find it for years—he needed such a treatment in his own home—he knew that epicac and internal medicines disturbed the delicate digestions of children—that the only way to get medication directly to the air passages and lungs was in vapor form. So he was searching for an effective vapor treatment which would be economical, convenient, and which could be used without the necessity of closing up the sick room and thus excluding the fresh air, so important in the treatment of colds.

At last, this druggist found a process by which he could combine in salve form the standard, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thymol and Turpentine—with other volatile oils so that when this salve was spread over the throat and chest the ingredients would be vaporized by the body heat. These vapors, inhaled with each breath all night long, carried the medication directly to the parts affected and at the same time the salve was absorbed thru and stimulated the skin, aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion. This product was named Vick's VapoRub.

Now over 17 Million Jars are used yearly

Vicks was found to be good for a great many troubles besides spasmodic croup, and as time went on, its sale increased county by county and state by state, until now over 17 million jars are used each year—almost one jar for every family in the United States. And this in spite of the fact that Vicks is still a new form of treatment to many people in the North and far West.

The best testimony to the value of Vicks is the increasing number of families who, each year, are converted to the use of this real "Little Bodyguard in the Home."

Here is the record of the number of jars used annually for the last few years:

1910	347,748 Jars
1911	523,182 Jars
1912	1,027,868 Jars
1913	1,357,890 Jars
1914	1,462,330 Jars
1915	2,418,213 Jars
1916	4,302,764 Jars
1917	6,790,511 Jars
1918	17,377,008 Jars

Directions for the Use of Vicks

VICKS VapoRub comes in salve form. When applied to the body its action is two-fold:

1st—INTERNAL. The heat of the body releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors are inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication through the air passages to the lungs.

And—EXTERNAL. In addition, Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Hoarseness

For severe cases, hot, wet cloths should be applied over the throat and chest to open the pores of the skin. Then Vicks should be rubbed on, spread on thickly and covered with two thicknesses of hot, flannel cloths. The clothing should be left loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a tunnel, so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever, Whooping Cough

For these troubles, Vicks can be used as for chest colds or can be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little may be put up the nostrils and snuffed back into the air passages.

For Spasmodic Croup and Children's Colds

Vicks is particularly recommended for children's colds, since it is externally applied and can, therefore, be used often and freely, with perfect safety. For spasmodic croup, rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. An application at bedtime usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Use as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster

On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect on the skin, Vicks has been found excellent for many minor ailments, such as Bites, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Frost bite, Itchings, Muscular Soreness, Poison oak, Sunburn, Headache.

Vicks Is Not Meant to Replace the Physician

At the first symptoms of a serious illness, such as pneumonia, a physician should always be called. Many other troubles, such as chronic catarrh or continued headache, call for the diagnosis of a good doctor. Vicks is simply an emergency remedy, which can be kept in the home ready for instant use and which can be used freely, with perfect safety, on the youngest member of the family.

U. S. IMPORTERS ARE WAXING FAT

Slump in Money Value Brings Big Profits.

ALL EUROPE IS AFFECTED

American Changes His Glad U. S. Money Into British, French or Italian Currency, Then Buys Goods Which He Ships to the United States, Where, Because of Inflation of American Dollar, He Reaps Big Profit.

American importers now purchasing goods in England, France and Italy for shipment to the United States, are waxing fat as a result of the depreciation of the pound sterling, the franc and lira, according to stories now going the rounds of the New York wholesale district.

The only "fly in the ointment" for the American buyers abroad is the fact that, by a presidential order several weeks ago, United States consuls are required to keep tab on big purchases, ascertain the selling price and cable these facts to the United States customs authorities. Then, by figuring the rate of exchange on the date of purchase, the government is enabled to set a proper value upon the goods for the collection of import duties. A court of claims passes upon what are alleged to be unfair appraisals.

How It Is Done.

The situation is said to be somewhat like this:

An American buying pound sterling say, on December 12, needed to pay in American money only $3.66 for British currency normally worth about $4.87. Now he goes to a factory in Nottingham, England, to buy laces, and there, although prices of course are higher than before the war, he pays for them in this depreciated money and makes a "handsome" profit. Then he ships the laces to the United States, where by reason of the inflation of the American dollar, they are retailed for from 100 to 150 per cent above prewar prices.

The same importer, on the same date, we will say, goes to France. In Paris he has exchanged his American dollars for francs. Normally there are 5.18½ francs to the dollar, but now he finds one Yankee "simoleon" will buy 11.52 francs, about 60 per cent more than before the war. The price of silks has gone up, but he goes to Lyons, and there, with his depreciated French money, he buys more than he has ever bought before at "bargain" prices. The silks reach New York, where they are sold to the consumer at double their former retail price.

Next this importer visits Italy, where he finds the lira, 5.18½ of which, like the franc, could be bought for one American dollar, now at a vast discount. In fact, he receives 13.47 lira for one American dollar and, well financed, he goes to Naples, where he negotiates the purchase of tapestries costing, of course, more than in 1914, but in reality cheaper when purchased with the present Italian currency.

The same financial conditions exist all over Europe, and in the former central empires, of course, they are reported much worse. In the allied countries, however, where there is national stability and greater ability to pay, the depreciated money is effecting some strange changes. A dinner which, before the war, in Paris could be had for a nominal sum, now costs from 20 to 50 francs.

American manufacturers, meanwhile, who desire to sell their products abroad, are demanding payment in American dollars at par. Recently the Belgian government, it is said, bought 20 American locomotives, for which payment, instead of being in Belgian money, was demanded in American dollars, thus adding from 15 to 20 per cent to the manufacturer's normal profit. Naturally this discourages foreign buying.

Cancels Big Orders.

On the other hand, a big American locomotive concern, apprehensive of the turn of political affairs abroad, due to delay over the peace treaty, is reported practically to have canceled all foreign advance orders. Such orders, calling for delivery in three, six or nine months, are said to be practically non-existent in the locomotive trade. Similar conditions exist in other industries. That is why American manufacturers have been saying: "If the peace treaty is not soon signed it will mean the complete loss of our foreign trade."

There are committees of the most prominent United States bankers and business men, representing the American Bankers' association, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the international trade conference, who have been at work on this problem of foreign exchange for months, and who will be ready to remedy the present situation as soon as the peace treaty becomes a fact for the American nation.

Gets Back $20 Lost Years Ago.

Mrs. Edward Joslin of Lafayette, Ind., has received $20 from Rev. Florian Reisle, pastor of St. Boniface's Roman Catholic church in that city, to replace a similar amount which she lost 16 years ago. The priest told her that the money had been found by some person who recently became remorseful and confessed to the priest that she had kept the money from the owner.

Mysterious Stonehenge.

An English historian alludes to Stonehenge as the probable remains of an ancient Druidical temple. The Druids were priests who taught astrology, magic and legal lore, generously giving their pupils 20 years to finish the course. They made human sacrifices to the gods and venerated the oak and the mistletoe. It was a great day when mistletoe was found growing on an oak; it was cut off with a knife of gold and a festival was held at which a pair of milk-white bulls were sacrificed. If stones could speak that circular row of mystery on Salisbury plain would have a good deal to say.

Selling "Good Will."

What is this thing "good will" that one sees so often listed among the assets of a business concern? What constitutes it and how is its value computed down to the dollars and cents? And why does it vary so much? Good will, according to accountants, is one of the measures of a company's success. It affords a line alike on the efficiency of the concern and the salability of its products and its prospects for future prosperity. But it is an intangible thing, an element that is not contained in actual figures on a company's books.—Kansas City Star.

Inflammability.

"Do you want your hair singed?" asked the polite barber. "No, I don't want to take a chance. A friend in whose judgment I have some confidence told me I have an ivory head." "What difference does that make?" "He might be wrong. Maybe it's cuticle."

GOOSE AND GANDER.

It is only natural that Republican legislators should scan any measure having to do with price of milk or any other farm product. One of the reasons is that since Governor Smith was elected he has been insistent upon a reorganization of the agricultural department. This is sufficient to prompt Republicans to scrutinize any bill related to farming sections. The fact stands out boldly that those who are directly interested, the farmers, have had practically no criticism against the bureau. The bulk of the attack has come from Tammany Hall or from non-farming districts and agitators who are trying to live off the farmers.

There may be call for adjustment between the city and the farm but the truth remains that it should not be dictated by Tammany Hall or the Democratic party which have had a hand extended for years to get control of the agricultural department. This has been purely political for no one would deny Tammany's inefficiency as regards rural matters. Nevertheless the desire has been to dominate the one department which Tammany thinks is a bulwark of strength to the Republicans.

As a matter of fact this is practically so but the explanation is Republican legislators come from up state and they know more about the farm and the farmer than the Tammany politician who spends his time where he could absorb no detail as to the responsibilities of farming. Tammany forgets that the farmer is not only a producer but a consumer as well and is entitled consideration. It is certain that New York city does not permit the farmer to fix the price of any single commodity in that section. And what is fair for the goose is surely fair for the gander.

EAT AND RUN.

The hearing before the judiciary committee of the assembly indicates the pace at which we are living. Thus far an enormous amount of material has been read into the records and from a legal standpoint it has been of vital importance, particularly as regards building the state's case. It is work which had to be done, but the newspaper men from all over the country who are attending the hearings have been praying for action. This is because the people, newspaper readers, a majority of them, are without time to go through every bit of testimony. It is a question of high lights to keep up public interest.

The same rule applies to international complications which have been debated and which have been given much space but which have not gripped the public as compared with a human interest story. The newspapers have been generous in their use of matter, realizing the importance of it, but editors and others have openly stated that the people were not reading more than headlines. This of course does not apply to professional men and others who by virtue of their calling find it necessary to be in touch with the various moves that are made.

If only the mass of people could pass more intelligently upon public affairs by reading the papers more thoroughly, even though some of the matter may be heavy there is no one boss big enough to make them do it. Hence it is imperative to give the main points of the daily doings at Albany or Washington in the first paragraph so that the reader may get an idea of just what has been done. The newspaper men are of one mind in this respect and their opinion is based on fact and not fancy. A habit into which we have fallen is eat and run.

STATE INCOME TAX INFORMATION

The following questions relative to the state income tax have been answered by Comptroller Travis

227. Retired—I have several stocks and bonds of Canadian corporations. Because of the unfavorable exchange conditions I have not withdrawn the earnings from these securities for the past two years. As a resident of New York, in making up my tax return, how do I consider these dividends and interest payments which accrued in 1919?

A. You should include in your 1919 return the interest and dividend couponss which have matured during 1919 although not cashed. The amount to be reported would be their value at the exchange rates prevailing at the time they were made payable by the corporations.

228. Clothier—Ever since I have been in business I have been using a fiscal year ending on February 15th for my federal government return. I also use this in my personal return. Do I have to obtain special permission from the State Comptroller to use this in my state return?

A. No. You should file a return for your fiscal year ending February 15, 1919, and the amount of tax payable by you will be determined by the proportion that your earnings between January 1st and February 15, 1919 bear to your total earnings for the entire fiscal year based upon the number of months.

229. Osteopath—I am maintaining my office in the front room of a six room dwelling. I pay $600 annual rent for the property. How do I determine the amount of rent which I may deduct as a business expense?

A. Under the circumstances, inasmuch as you occupy one-sixth of the rented area for business purposes, you may deduct $100 for rent.

230. Yonkers: My sister and I own a house which was left to us by our father. How do I treat the amount of taxes paid on this property in my personal return?

A. If the taxes are assessed jointly you may deduct your proportionate share.

231. Doubtful—A family consists of a mother dependent upon the earnings of three children. May any of the children claim the exemption as head of the family?

A. No, unless one of them is the chief support of the mother and exercises family control and supervision over the affairs of the household.

232. Teacher—As a resident of New York I receive a pension from the state of New Jersey as a retired teacher. Is this taxable?

A. Yes, to the extent that the amounts received by you exceed the amount of any payments which you made to the fund.

233. Executor—I am executor under the will of a married man who died October, 1919. He did not file his individual report. What are my duties.

A.—If the net income of the decedent between January 1st, 1919, and the date of his death was $2,000 or more you would file a return for him. Moreover, as executor, you would be required to file a return for the estate covering the period from the date of death to December 31, 1919, if the net income of the estate was $2,000 or more during that time. If the estate was settled prior to January 1, 1920 and distribution made to beneficiaries you would have to file an information return and the beneficiaries would be required to include such distribution share in their individual return.

234. Dwelling—In December, 1919, the water pipe burst in my dwelling causing $200 worth of damage. This was not covered by insurance. Is it a deductible loss?

A.—Yes, it is a casualty and the amount to be deducted is the reasonable charge for repairs.

235. Citizen—I am in a quandary as to the exclusion of water taxes in my state return. Will you please set me right?

A.—If the water taxes are assessed by the municipality on the basis of a uniform rate upon flat foot frontage they are in the nature of taxes and therefore deductible. Assessments based upon meter rates or calculated according to the number of faucets, bath tubs, etc., or in any other manner where the consumption, actual or theoretical is the basis of the assessment are not deductible.

236. R. M. L.—I was appointed executor of an estate in 1917 and closed the estate in 1919. Must I report as income the fees which I received in 1919, when I made my accounting to the surrogate?

A.—You are only required to report fees which were earned since January 1, 1919, as income.

237. Harlem—I am a porter on a Pullman train and receive a salary of $1,200 per year from the federal government. I also receive tips amounting to $1,000 per year. Must I pay a tax on all the money which I receive?

A.—The money which you receive from the railroad company is exempt from taxation as you are a federal employe, and the money which you receive from tips is considered as taxable income and must be reported by you.

238. Engineer—I am employed by the state in the bureau of health. Am I subject to New York state income tax.

A.—Yes.

239. Weaver—I am employed in a manufacturing plant and contribute one per cent of my salary to a retirement fund. Should I report such contribution as income?

A.—Yes.

240. Manufacturer—I am performing manufacturing work for the United States government. Am I allowed to charge off for amortization?

A.—No.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Feb 2—On account of the great number of sick in the village and vicinity, all the services in the Methodist Church were omitted on Sunday. There are probably some ill of whom the writer has no knowledge but the list known is a long one. The following are recovering: George Van Tassell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Beaver, Mr. and Mrs. Huth and son, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Canoung and daughter Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. George Mowell and little son, John. Supervisor John H. Beaver and sons, John and Paul, Mrs. Andrew Eyett, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Best and sons, Kenneth and Ernest, Leslie, Alton and Mildred Lund, children of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lund. The only ones in this family who have not been ill so far are Mrs. Lund and daughter, Helen. We are sorry to state that the youngest child, Rudolph Herbert, died this morning after suffering for many days with pneumonia. Everything that could possibly be done for the relief of the little sufferer had been done by the nurse, Miss Isabelle Davis, the mother and kind neighbors, but all to no avail. Dr. Stern of Kingston and Dr. G. W. Ross, the attending physician held a consultation last week at the home but all efforts were unavailing. The family has the sympathy of the entire community. In addition to this and affliction the father of the little one now has pneumonia. He was ill for some days with influenza and partially recovered but suffered a relapse which has developed into pneumonia. Let us hope that he may soon recover.

In addition to the list of sick ones convalescing are Mrs. John Weiss and son and daughter and Ralsey Mott.

Mrs. Alva Drake was summoned to Linden, N. J., on January 24, an account of the illness of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Drake.

Mrs. Harrison Wright and little daughter, Dorothy, came to Esopus a few days ago to spend a week with Alfred Wright, her father-in-law, but received a dispatch stating that her husband had been suddenly stricken with pneumonia. She immediately returned to her home in New York city to be at his bedside.

COTTEKILL

Cottekill, N. Y., Feb. 2—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Cottekill Reformed Church, will give a Leap Year Supper in the church on Thursday evening, February 5th. If very stormy, the next fair evening. A good supper will be served from six p. m., for forty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for children under twelve years. Home-made ice cream will be for sale. A parcel post sale will be held, the package selling for ten cents each whether you select a large or small one.

This is a good opportunity for sleighing parties to take a nice sleigh ride and then drop in at the church, get warm, enjoy a nice supper, a social hour, and then feel just right for the drive home.

Proceeds for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society.

BROWN STATION.

Brown Station, Feb. 3.—There is no school for a while on account of the illness of the teacher.

William Whalen, who has been very ill with measles, is improving.

FAT COW BLASTS $60 OUT OF CONGRESS

Ate $40 in Explosive and Left Her Owner to Collect From Government.

The cow that burned up Chicago, the cow that jumped over the moon, the cow that raised the fatted calf and the cow that died on the tune—they will have to recognize an addition to their celebrated quartet now.

She's the cow that ate up $60 worth of government dynamite out in Willard Wash., and made the wheels of congress go around until her owner got $60

The house paused in its consideration of weightier subjects long enough to pass the necessary bill. Contributory negligence on the part of the government road builders who left the sticks of dynamite where Bossy could eat them was the verdict.

Strangely enough, it didn't blow up the cow, it only poisoned her, but it nearly blew up the house of representatives.

The House evidently enjoyed its little excursion into the field of humor and switched from cows to false teeth.

It passed a bill to pay Michael McGarvey $45 for a set he lost while working at the quartermaster's depot, Governor's Island, last July. The government compensation commission had refused his claim, but the house was in a compassionate mood and thought otherwise.

MARRIED IN MORGUE

Couple Begin Honeymoon by Viewing the Dead.

Marriage in a morgue—with numerous dead on marble slabs in the next room!

That is the latest stunt that has hit Denver, Colo Lee William Sumpter Reaves a recently returned soldier, and Miss Eva Pearl Adams were married at Olinger's mortuary by the Olinger chaplain Rev. G. A. Barth. The bride's brother, J. Fred Adams, who is night clerk at the Brown hotel, was best man

According to J Fred Adams, the bridal party, immediately following the wedding ceremony, began their honeymoon by a stroll through the morgue in the adjoining room, and took a look at the bodies awaiting burial The bride and bridegroom then departed for a home they have furnished at 2733 West Ellsworth avenue, in Barnum

The idea of being married in a mortuary with only a thin door separating the living from the dead, is not one that appeals to most persons, but according to Rev. Mr. Barth the wedding at Olinger's is not the first marriage that has taken place there, although one has not been performed on the premises for a considerable time.

FIVE DOLLARS A QUART

Modest Price Fixed for Whale Milk by Captain Loop.

Five dollars a quart—not a cent less—would be the price he would ask for whale's milk if he established a whale dairy, according to Capt. John H. Loop, a sea mammal expert of Long Beach, near Los Angeles, Cal., who recently returned from a whale hunt in Mexican Pacific waters.

Captain Loop has not determined, however, to establish a whale dairy; he merely made that announcement because Arthur de Bit of 607 North Eighteenth street, Omaha, Neb., who had heard of the captain's knowledge of whales and of a small cargo of the tiniest kind of tottabouts that he recently brought to southern California, sent a request "reserving" a sample of the milk.

Captain Loop said he would send a sample to Mr. de Bit.

He permitted members of the B. P. O. Elks to sample the whale milk he took to Long Beach. They declared it richer and more palatable than that of cows.

The captain who has entertained with interesting information to the general knowledge of whales, says the first thing to do in order to obtain the milk of cow is to catch the whale. He has not made public how he does it.

MANDEL IS REAL RULER OF FRANCE

Head of Clemenceau's Personal Cabinet an Autocrat.

KEEPS BIG MEN WAITING

Described as Man Who Never Eats and Takes Telephone to Bed With Him—No Time to See Former President of the Republic, He Sends Him to M. Clemenceau—Deputies Tell Stories of How Cabinet Chief Does Business.

It seems to be the fashion in France, nowadays, to dispute the origin of masterpieces, and lately the columns of the leading papers have been animated with letters from wise men on the subject of the authenticity of Moliere's plays. Some claim that certain of the works of France's greatest playwright are in reality from the hand of Corneille. The next question in order would seem to be, "Who wrote Corneille's plays?" Without going into the intricacies of a literary discussion, which in the present crisis might be deemed beside the mark, it is perhaps permissible to inquire if the political accomplishments of M. Clemenceau are really to be credited to his genius or if they are inspired by another brain than his, for instance, that of St. Mandel, writes Julian Harris in the New York Herald.

A few months ago one of the most influential of the deputies went to recommend one of his electors to the head of Mr. Clemenceau's cabinet. Mr. Mandel, who since his election as deputy has been succeeded by Mr. Wormser, received him in his office, now a historic spot, seated before a small desk, no less historic, the sole ornament of which is a standard telephone. Almost before the deputy could make known the object of his visit, Mr. Mandel took charge of the conversation, and out of the depths of his collar, in his well-known manner, began to unfold the ideas of the government on the question of the order of the day at the Palais-Bourbon.

Keeps Former President Waiting.

In the midst of his remarks a messenger came in and handed the eminent chief of Clemenceau's personal cabinet the card of a visitor. Annoyed at the interruption, Mr. Mandel with a weary gesture inquired, "Who does this person want?"

Before the messenger could hazard a reply the card was returned to him with the following instructions:—"I have no time for him. Take this card to M Clemenceau, president of the council."

The messenger bowed and withdrew and Mr. Mandel continued his monologue. But in a few moments the messenger returned with the news that the caller insisted upon seeing the chief of the personal cabinet himself. The latter shrugged his shoulders as he replied: "Let him wait."

Upon which he again took up the thread of his discourse. The deputy listened, approved, and finally recommended his elector, as he withdrew from the chief's presence. On his way out he noticed in the small waiting room seated near the door of Mr. Mandel's office, M. Emile Loubet former president of the French republic, patiently waiting the pleasure of the chief of cabinet.

In the meantime another deputy, equally influential, was ushered into Mr. Mandel's office. The latter harangued him as he had done his fellow member, and the messenger again interrupted, this time with a letter.

"With your permission," said the chief of cabinet, as he broke the seal and read the missive. Then turning to the messenger, "Tell him that I have not a moment to spare, and hand him this from me." And he gave the man a small box which he took out of one of the drawers of the historic desk.

Never Sleeps, Eats or Drinks.

A few moments later the deputy noticed in the waiting room a little old man who was offering some cigars from the box which had been sent him to the employees of the office. As he did so he kept repeating to the messenger, "Tell monsieur that he is very kind, very kind indeed.

"Who is that man?" asked the deputy when the little old man had gone his way. The imperturbable messenger replied, "That is Mr. Rothschild, Mr. Mandel's father."

A third deputy, as influential as the other two, one day was present at the following dialogue in the office of the chief of cabinet:

Messenger—The president of the council and General Mordacq are about to go out. They would like to know if Monsieur has anything to say to them.

Mr. Mandel (after an instant's reflection)—No. I gave them my instructions this morning.

The astonished deputy glanced at Mr. Mandel, but the latter looked quite as usual, serious and unsmiling.

A fourth deputy offers the following psychological sketch of Mr. Mandel:

"He is a man who never sleeps, who never eats, who never drinks, who writes nothing, who has no interest in women, and who takes a telephone to bed with him."

The Glad, Gay Hour

¶ Right after the evening meal comes the hour of the family. The kiddies have their final romp. Father escapes from his world of business. Mother sits down to enjoy her loved ones.

¶ Does music play a part in this hour in your home?

¶ Children love music, better if anything than stories. A merry song—a rollicking dance (how the little ones prance and skip!)—a beautiful idyll! Music is the magical stimulus of gladness.

¶ You owe a duty to your children; the same duty in music as in literature. You know that they love good stories, and you try to see that the stories which they read are good stories. You know that they love music—it is your duty to see that they hear good music, properly rendered.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

is the only phonograph which produces music with absolute fidelity to the original. Its realism has caused it to be called "The Phonograph With a Soul." It literally RE-CREATES music, and the United States Government has given Mr. Edison the exclusive right to use the word RE-CREATE in connection with the reproduction of music.

The New Edison does not distort music as it does not give a wrong conception of music. On the contrary, it gives you and your children everything there is in music.

Your home deserves the best. Will you bring your leaders to our store and let them decide whether they want songs in their home that sound exactly as when the singer sings them, or whether they want songs as no singer would sing them? It will be interesting to note how quickly your children will observe the difference between the New Edison and talking machines.

Please remember that the instrument which your kiddies select can be paid for on convenient terms.

SPIES OLD AND NEW IN WARTIME

Technique of Detection Explained by Major Powell.

METHODS ARE MUCH CHANGED

Development of Secret Code Devices Renders This Country Well Nigh Invulnerable in Event of Our Ever Becoming Involved in Another War—Has System of Code Transmission Which Can Defy All Experts in the World

When Mme. Marie K. de Victorica, daughter of the Prussian general to whom Achille Bazaine handed his sword in 1870 at the surrender of Metz, set out from the Wilhelmstrasse to conduct an espionage campaign in America during the recent war, two silk mufflers were an important part of her equipment.

Of her equipment, not of her wardrobe!

For the mufflers were impregnated with a secret ink chemical, so that when she saturated them in water and wrung them out she obtained the needed "invisible" fluid for her code messages to Germany. By dissolving in water pink iodine tablets manufactured by British chemists, secret agents in Berlin set up the necessary reaction to make the writing visible.

Mme. de Victorica, you perceive, was an old-fashioned spy, a product and tool of old-world diplomacy and duplicity, the New York Times explains. So-called invisible ink is one of the oldest tricks of the trade. A close mouth is one of the personal requirements, too, and however well the madame may have been provided with silk mufflers, she was woefully deficient in vocal mufflers. She talked too much, and in consequence of her indiscreet boasting on the steamship which bore her to this country a watch was set on her which bulked most of her spying and ultimately brought arrest.

Tricks of the Modern Spy.

The modern spy, as evolved from the world war, differed as widely from Mme de Victorica and her secret ink as the Woolworth building differs from the Pyramids, to which time secret ink probably belongs. He used a code, to be sure, but it was the kind of code which would have robbed Edgar Allan Poe of a picturesque part of his reputation had it been in use in his day, for it was transmitted, not by ink but by electricity, and it was so ingenious that even the operator sending the message could not possibly decipher it.

That statement is made on the authority of Maj. E. Alexander Powell, who is entitled to write an imposing string of letters after his name, but who uses his military title in signing his latest book, "The Army Behind the Army," about to be published by Charles Scribner's Sons. He takes a casual and somewhat contemptuous glance at Mme. De Victorica and her ink, for he is much more interested in the unassuming and undisguised modern detective spy, partly because when he entered the war he was one of the four officers in the military intelligence division (the army secret service) and he cheats the censorship to the extent of telling some new facts about its work.

Mme. De Victorica, it may be said in passing, was a kinswoman of the kaiserin, and had received a high education in German universities. She spoke four languages, had worked as a German spy and propagandist in South America and other countries and had been thrice married. Her last husband was a South American, who died suddenly soon after the marriage. Her first husband was Prof. Otto Eckmann of Heidelberg university. Her German title was the Baroness Maria Kretschmann. She used various aliases, among them Mlle. Marie de Vessiere, and Frau Maria Kretschmann.

Secret Code Devices.

Perhaps no revelation Major Powell makes is more interesting than that about the secret code devices. "I am not permitting myself to indulge in the slightest exaggeration," he writes, "when I assert that these devices place in the hands of the United States weapons which would render this country wellnigh invulnerable in the event it ever becomes involved in another war." And later he adds that "as universal peace is not yet in sight, even with the aid of a telescope, and as this nation would prove of incalculable benefit to the United States in the event of our becoming again involved in war, it is obviously out of the question to discuss the principle upon which it is based, much less the details of its construction and operation. It is enough to say that this nation is now the possessor of a system of code transmission which can defy all the experts in the world, a message sent by its means being absolutely undecipherable by the inventor himself."

For all there is a clue to the secret in Major Powell's description of another invention, unsuccessfully tried out before the successful device was found by the American Telephone and Telegraph company. He says:

Confusing the Enemy.

"Another system had as its basic principle the breaking up of the groups of Morse dots and dashes which represented the letters of the message, and routing these mangled fragments over widely separated wires to the receiving station, where they were automatically joined together again, so as to form the message as originally sent. If, for example, it was desired to send from Baltimore to Washington the message, 'Transport Leviathan sails June 15,' it was prepared to make use of two wires, one running, let us say, through Harrisburg, the other via Wilmington. The message sent over the Harrisburg wire would be broken up something after this fashion: 'Tas-o-tei-ea-s-r-ne-w-u-i-l-l.' While the portion going by way of Wilmington would read 'r-n-p-r-l-v-a-h-n-a-l-j-u-n-e-t-f-f-h.'

"To create still further confusion in the mind of anyone who might succeed in intercepting one of these sets of fragments it was proposed to superimpose a 'camouflage' message upon the disconnected letters, the characters of the camouflage message to occupy the spaces between the characters of the real message. By an exceedingly ingenious device these apparently inextricably intermixed and unrelated letters were automatically sorted out at the receiving station and pieced together like a jigsaw puzzle, so that the message appeared precisely as it was sent.

Utilizing the Telephone.

"Going a step further, the inventors of this system proposed by the same means to install a system of telephone communication whereby the spoken words would be broken up just as the Morse characters were divided, certain sounds in each word going over one wire and the remaining sounds over another, to be joined together at the receiving station into a perfectly intelligible conversation.

"Here again a wholly separate and extraneous conversation was superimposed over the sounds proceeding by each route, so that were either of the lines tapped the listener in would be rewarded for his pains by hearing a torrent of sound which would convince him that he was listening to a combination of Choctaw, Chinese, the ravings of John McCullough, and the symptoms of a severe cold. Notwithstanding the undeniable ingenuity of this system the signal corps experts demonstrated, to the unconcealed astonishment of the inventors, that they could overhear and understand these crazy-built conversations as readily as though they were being held across a dinner table in plain English."

Products of American Ingenuity.

The successful device (which may, of course, use none of the principles involved in the system just outlined) is one of three evolved by Yankee ingenuity from the war which Major Powell regards as "the most important discoveries, so far as their effect on the peaceful interests of the nation are concerned, which have been produced since Morse invented the telephone and Marconi amazed us with the wireless." One of them is the radiotelephone, by means of which persons on the ground can converse with aviators; and the other is the discovery of Chief Signal Officer Squire that growing trees can be used as sending and receiving posts for radio messages.

Major Powell's book is devoted in the main to the man with the silver chevrons. He wrote it at the request of Secretary Baker and was retained in the service to complete it. Readers may be sure, therefore, that he had access to all necessary records; but there are moments when the heavy hand of a department head becomes apparent.

"The Ears of the Army."

In spite of that, he writes as one "on the inside." He tells of the 18 telephone and telegraph battalions recruited in large measure from the ranks of the two great telephone companies in this country (which may explain why it has been so hard to get "central.") These he calls "the ears of the army," but at times they also were its spies. He tells of the engineers, the gasmakers, the quartermaster and ordnance departments, the aviators, the tank corps, the motor transport corps, the medical department and, of course, military intelligence. He says, incidentally, that not one spy was shot here during the war.

It is Major Powell's contention that the motor transport had its beginning when Pershing went into Mexico after Villa; and at one place he throws this interesting sidelight on the submarine raids along the Atlantic coast:

America's Moving Fortresses.

"And, apropos of rolling stock, here is a bit of secret history hitherto unpublished. When Villa's raiders were threatening to destroy the railway lines paralleling the Mexican border the engineering corps designed and built a number of self-propelling armored railway cars armed with three-inch rifles, machine guns and searchlights. When the German submarines began their piratical operations along the Atlantic seaboard in the spring of 1918 these moving fortresses were secretly rushed up from the Rio Grande in order to afford protection to the undefended Jersey coast towns. It was well for the U-boat commanders that they did not attempt to shell Long Branch and Atlantic City as they shelled Scarborough and Broadstairs. If they had the engineers and their armored cars would have given them the surprise of their lives."

America's effort in felling forests in France, building railroads there, producing superfusion gas and so on is more than a twice-told tale. Major Powell tells it with an interest as fresh as though he approached it for the first time, and frequently produces facts not hitherto known. This article is not an attempt to summarize all the new things he has had to say; it is, on the contrary, a great foundation-cutting.

Sand Digger Quits Work When He Finds Fortune

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Fortune just laughed right out loud in the face of a humble sand digger here recently.

Thirteen hundred and fifty dollars, thoroughly wet from its long immersion on the bottom of the Ohio river, but still good, spendable money, was scooped up in his bucket. As no owner's name appeared in the wallet, the finder claimed the coin by right of discovery and immediately quit his job by right of affluence.

Letter Finds "Mamma."

Cincinnati, O.—A letter written by Lucille Shepherd, thirteen years of age, of Osborne, asking Chief of Police Copelan to institute a search for her mother, Mrs. Rose Shepherd, led detectives to find Mrs. Shepherd here the other day. The child wrote "they needed mamma to take care of her and her little brothers." The officials were in Mrs. Shepherd's apartment when a man, who said he was George Murphy, entered. He was crumpling a letter in his hands. The detectives say the letter was from the husband of the woman in which he pleaded with her to return to him and her children. In police court the cases of Mrs. Shepherd and the man were continued.

HALT EX-KAISER'S FENCE

Burgomeister Stops Building Because It Encroaches on the Public Highway.

Doorn, Holland.—The burgomeister of Doorn has halted, at least temporarily, the erection of a high fence along the roadside about the house of Doorn, the future residence of the former German emperor. There is no wall about the estate, such as at the Bentinck castle at Amerongen, the present home of William Hohenzollern.

It was found, however, that the fence encroached on a public highway and, for this reason, the burgomeister orders its construction stopped.

The former monarch is expected to take up his residence here in February. The work of remodeling is well under way, as the house has been vacated by the Baroness van Heemstra de Beaufort, its former owner.

An Affliction Cure.

John Pappas, a Greek, has been arrested on a charge of grand larceny. Khalid Heida, a Turk, makes the accusation. Heida had some Russian money, how much he doesn't know. He exchanged it for 100 English sovereigns. An Italian friend introduced him to Pappas, the Greek. A trip through the botanical gardens was undertaken. During the walk a man who looked like a Swede and who talked like a Swede appeared and assumed the role of hold-up man. Pappas didn't help, said the Turk. Detective Hagerty, an Irishman, arrested the Greek. The preliminary hearing was held next morning before a magistrate who was born in Wales.—New York Times.

Maxwell

Extra Fine in Metals
Extra Fine in Mileage

A Maxwell car weighs 2130 pounds. It is made of the finest materials that may be obtained.

You cannot find in any car a better crankshaft, better bearings, better axles or better gears.

Neither science nor money can produce them better.

Do you know why such fine materials are used in a car like Maxwell?

We had to.

Keeping its weight down and yet maintaining strength mean the use of only those extra fine steels and metals.

For a metal that is light in weight and yet strong, as any user of metals knows, is a high priced metal.

The use of these fine grades of steel has been the foundation of the business. Maxwell has grown in numbers and friends. The latter countless; the former well on the road to 400,000.

DON'T WAIT FOR INCOME TAX MAN

"Don't wait for an income tax man to pull your door bell or your coat tail. He is too busy these days to seek you out; but he is where you can find him if you need his help."

This bit of advice is contained in a statement given out by Collector of Internal Revenue Roscoe Irwin. The statement continues:

"Everybody who had an income during 1919 must now determine whether his or her net income was sufficient in amount to require an income tax return. The best way to find out is to get a Form 1040A and follow the instructions printed on it. That form will serve as a reminder of every item of income; and if a return is due, it tells how to prepare and file it.

"One of the important points to keep in mind is that a person's net income is found by a computation prescribed in the law, and that each item of income from every source must be considered, unless specifically exempted.

Another thing to remember is that the personal exemption allowed taxpayers by law has no relation whatever to the requirement to file a return. This exemption is not to be considered until a person has figured out his net income and determined whether it was sufficient to require him to file a return. Then, if a return must be filed, he should read carefully the instructions for claiming exemption, and complete his return.

"If in doubt on any point as to income or deductions, a person may secure free advice and aid from the deputies stationed throughout the district. Many banks and trust companies are also furnishing similar service during banking hours.

"Early callers are getting better attention than those who rush in just before the filing period ends on March 15. Taxpayers can help the government and themselves by coming early for any needed advice or aid, and by early filing of returns and payments."

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Feb. 3.—The second annual banquet tendered the members of the M. E. Church Sunday school was held in the lecture room of the church. Friday evening. Covers were laid for two hundred, which included members of the Home Department as guests. Supper was served at 6:30 o'clock, under the direction of the teachers of the school, ably assisted by several ladies of Mrs. Count's class. The members of Mrs. Ernest Sherman's class of girls, by highest per cent in attendance during the year, won seats at the table of honor. Mrs. Andrews presided at this table in the absence of Mrs Sherman by illness. Miss Lord's class of boys won seats at second honor table. Owing to weather conditions, the large Home Department were only represented by fifteen members. Mrs. Stratton's class of twenty-one had a representation of eighteen young ladies. Following the serving of an elaborate supper, the tables were cleared by the girls of Mrs. Mahlon Smith's and Mrs. Potter's class, presided over by Mrs. Potter's sister, Mrs. Emma Mance, in the absence of Mrs. Potter, and ice cream and cake served to all at the tables. Music followed, and while all were yet seated, the Rev. Charles A. Dann gave an excellent talk, which received warm welcome. He was followed by Superintendent H. W. Coons, whose remarks received hearty applause, especially as he presented to seventeen members of the school, who had not been absent a Sunday from the school session, a Bible or church hymnal as their reward. A social intercourse followed, also music enjoyed by everybody.

Asa Clyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clyne of Center street, who graduated from Albany Business College two weeks ago, has secured a fine position with the Havens Electric Company of Albany. On Tuesday evening, January 27, he attended a reception given by the Electric Company and reports a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Howe entertained in honor of several young brides and grooms at their home on Canal street, Friday evening. Following a musical program, refreshments were served and enjoyed with a delightful social intercourse.

The February meeting of the Musical Club will be held in the Hunt Memorial Hall, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program is a recital and will be in charge of Mrs. John R. DeVany, Mrs. Bert H. Terwilliger and Mrs. Ben M. Taylor.

The Chautauqua Circle will hold its meeting this evening at the High School Auditorium. The subject will be "Mexico" and an illustrated lecture given. The public generally are invited to attend this special meeting.

On Friday afternoon a meeting will be held in Hunt Memorial Hall in the interest of the Home Bureau, an important meeting for the ladies of Ellenville and vicinity. Speakers alive to the work are to be present and take part. One has asked, What is a Home Bureau? Well answered by another: An organization of local women in the country or city working with the help of government agencies for the better homes and communities, as the Farm Bureau does for better farming. The ladies are urged to be present at this meeting to be held in the interest of the Home Bureau.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson have sold their large summer boarding house which they so successfully conducted at Ulster Heights for several years, to New York parties. This property is considered one of the most finely located properties in that section of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, who conduct the West End grocery, formerly the well known Low grocery, have purchased the residence of Addison Stratton on Center and Bloomer streets and expect to take possession early in May.

Mrs. Julia Budd of Wurtsboro was a guest at the home of James A. Myers for several days the past week.

Mrs. G. R. Knitzel returned to her home at Yonkers on Saturday after spending several days with Ellenville relatives, a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Frederick Freer.

Mrs. W. H. Sawyer was called to Galeton, Pa., by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Alvord Van Gorder.

The local groceries were reinstated as being on the Ellenville map again when it was announced on Saturday that sugar was in market and could be obtained in quantities almost too large for the cash and carry system, but many were delighted to take a few pounds home under the arm system.

The local thermometers were anywhere from 10 to 20 below Sunday morning, and the plumbers were kept busy at different homes about town relieving difficulties that are to come with thermometers playing so important a part in many residences where staying up all night played no special part.

Mrs. John Black closed out at private sale the tools and equipment of the blacksmith shop formerly occupied by her late husband near the Beerkill bridge.

Superintendent Heason announces every seat taken in the local senior and junior high school following January examinations. There were 11 new entrances made. Nine pupils registered from out of town, two from town.

SAUGERTIES.

HE SKIS TO WORK.

Supt. John P. Clarke In Nothing If Not Resourceful.

John P. Clarke, superintendent of the Rondout postoffice, resides on the high points on West Chestnut street, and while the view is fine and the air good the only objection has been the daily climb up and down the long, long hill leading from his home to the lower Broadway postoffice. But you can't keep a good man down and as he was absently turning the pages of The Freeman the other night he ran across an advertisement telling of the joys of skiing. Need it be said that he bought a pair and as soon as he learns the knack it will be an ordinary sight to see Superintendent Clarke skiing to work. Frank Elmendorf, his capable office assistant, is also thinking of investing in a pair of skis.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, Feb. 2.—The Ladies' Aid Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Schuloff of Creek Locks. All the ladies are invited to come.

The Christian Endeavor meeting at 7 o'clock will be led by Miss Florence Relyea, topic, "A Worth While Life," found in Ps. 27:18-40. Decision day.

Mrs. Sieg of New York city came up on Saturday and is about to buy a place here to make her home. She is being entertained by her friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Zuelch.

George Hofkmas who has been ill for the past week with a severe cold is improving slowly at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lefever and sister, Miss Luella Fridell, visited Kingston on Thursday afternoon.

The funeral of E. Fletcher Domitick of Walden, N. Y., took place in the Bloomington Cemetery on Saturday evening. His wife was a girl formerly from Creek Locks, Miss Nina Trimer. Her friends extend their sympathy in this her sad hour of loneliness.

Dr. Snyder of Kingston called on some of the sick ones in this place on Friday afternoon. He also called on Julius Metk who broke his leg some time ago. He is doing as well as can be expected. His neighbors and friends will be glad to see him out soon.

Miss Deanie Smith is confined to her home on account of being in ill health.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeckwin are entertaining friends for a few days from the city.

We hope to see our daily baker, Ernest Smith of Hurley avenue, Kingston, who has been ill for the past week soon able to be out again on his wagon.

Milton Zuelch is going to No. 8 school at Kingston.

NO DEFENDERS OF GRADE CROSSINGS

Says P. S. C.—406 Eliminated in State—General Plan Ready to Abolish Those in Kingston—Railroad Ownership Question Settlement Would Facilitate Work.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb 33.—Arguments are not needed to sustain the position that elimination of existing grade crossings about the state should be made as rapidly as possible, says the Public Service Commission, Second District. The long list of fatalities and the almost daily reports of accidents despite various forms of protection point clearly to the fact that complete elimination is the only positive remedy.

There has been no decided advance in the work of eliminating these crossings during 1919 The expected resumption of these activities has been retarded by the unprecedented increase in the cost of materials and labor since the close of the war as well as by reluctance or professed inability of the railroads to provide funds necessary to accomplish the eliminations.

Several municipalities as well as the state commission of highways have indicated their willingness and ability to proceed with work already ordered or join in new projects, but it has been wise, the commission says, not to insist that work shall be begun except in a few cases. It has been thought best in the majority of cases to wait until the present unsettled state with respect to the future operation of the railroads has been cleared. There are sufficient orders of the commission already made and determinations pending to absorb all available appropriations by the state, and the commission is hopeful that the opening of the working season will have been preceded by a settlement of the railroad problem which will without reasonable question warrant the commission in directing active progress in grade crossing eliminations.

Four hundred and six grade crossings have thus far been eliminated in New York state Westchester county leads the other 61 counties in the amount which has been expended for grade crossings. Of the total amount paid by the state to December 31, 1919, $2,618,366, and representing approximately 25 per cent of the aggregate expenditure by railroads, state and municipalities, as its share of the completed work, 27.7 per cent or $723,757 has been paid by the state toward grade crossing improvements in Westchester county.

Schenectady county comes second with 15.7 per cent of the amount paid or $411,516.

Albany county fourth with 5.7 per cent or $150,995.

Orange county twelfth with 2 per cent or $52,874.

Dutchess county sixteenth with 1.1 per cent or $29,371.

Sullivan county seventeenth with 1.09 per cent or $28,535.

Ulster county twentieth with 1 per cent or $26,438.

Total state appropriation to date for eliminating grade crossings is $3,391,661, and of this amount $2,618,306 had been paid for work up to December 31, 1919, $773,354 reserved for work which has been authorized, and $426,354 set aside for grade crossing work already ordered.

There are 25 petitions now pending before the commission for doing away with grade crossings deemed unsafe and dangerous for traffic. This work will require approximately $1,500,000 to pay the state's share of the various undertakings at an approximate cost to the state, municipalities and the railroads involved of $6,000,000.

There is a general plan to eliminate grade crossings in Kingston, including that in Broadway. Among others also pending are: Main and Whitley street improvement in Tarrytown, the river road and Main street improvement in Cornwall, the Wilmer ave improvement in Middletown, the Main street improvement in Cohleskill, the Broadway-Madison avenue improvement in Albany, the Yonkers-Tuckahoe road improvement in Yonkers.

In Orange county the Howell's station and the Mechanicstown improvement in Wallkill township and the Blooming Grove Lincoln highway in Blooming Grove township.

In Greene county, the Hunter turnpike in Hunter township.

METTACAHONTS.

Mettacahonts, Feb. 3.—Don't forget the date, nor to be present, at the free entertainment and social to be given at the school house on Friday evening, February 6. As a general rule free entertainments are not supposed to amount to much, but this will be an exception and will be well worth attending. You will be sure to enjoy the amusing songs, skits and recitations, and afterwards the ice cream, cake and coffee which will be for sale, will be sure to please you immensely, so put on your best "bib and tucker" and be on hand when the doors open at 7:30 at the Mettacahonts school house. Everybody welcome and the more the merrier. Miss Kathryn Hotaling has charge of the entertainment.

Eli Osterhoudt, who has been ill for some time, does not improve very rapidly, having been attacked with neuritis in one knee this week. Dr. Fuller is still attending him. We are hoping Mr. Osterhoudt will soon be up and around.

Harry Osterhoudt is ill with a severe cold at this writing.

Joseph Muskowitz has purchased a sleigh.

Jacob Hornbeck has been employed by Mrs. Sarah Cohen, splitting wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Deroy Baker entertained on Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kelder and sons, Robert and Franklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Ben E. Burger and sons, Joe and Dan, and Miss Kathryn Hotaling. A very pleasant evening was passed.

TWO GOOD GAMES.

At St. Peter's Hall Wednesday Evening.

Wednesday evening at St. Peter's Hall there will be two hot basketball games when Kaseys meet Centrals and Peerless play Pioneers. Kaseys are now one game behind the Centrals. Wednesday they will have "Bud" Culloton with them and every fan in the city knows "Bud" and his ability as a basketball player. The Centrals are just as confident of retaining their lead as "Bunny" Rourke will be in their line-up that evening, and "Bunny" is claimed by many to be the fastest forward in the city. The Pioneer-Peerless game should be a fast one as both teams are playing great ball at this time, after getting off to a bad start.

The standing of the teams to date shows what Wednesday night's games mean to all the teams.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Girls' Dress With or Without Jumper and With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.

2320—This model will make a very pretty dress for "best" or party wear. One could use batiste, lawn, mull, organdy, cashmere, taffeta, or a combination of silk and velvet. The overblouse or jumper could be of contrasting material.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 will require 2¾ yards of 44 inch material for the dress and 1¾ yard for the jumper.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or 1c and 2c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10c in silver or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer 1920 Catalogue, containing 550 designs of Ladies', Misses', and Children's Patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 10 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

ACCORD.

Accord, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Mary Baker has been spending some time at St. Jones.

It is reported that there are several cases of measles in this vicinity.

Miss Bertha Hendrickson called on Miss Helen Depuy Saturday evening.

Was it cold Saturday morning? Ask Postmaster Kalchal. He froze his ears on his way to the office.

Freeman Lang also had the same misfortune Saturday.

Luther Quick of Whitfield suffered a paralytic stroke Saturday.

Perry Krom of Ellenville spent some time in town Friday.

Last Night's Fights.

At Newark—Gene Tunny knocked out Al Roberts in the eighth round.

Charlie Beecher clashed Battling Reddy.

Eddie Fitzsimmons outpointed Jimmy Duffy.

Benny Valgor gave Jack Fox a beating (cost).

At Philadelphia—Tim O'Dowd, Boston heavyweight, defeated Fred Rumpron, of New York, in six rounds.

Joe Tipton and Jack Reese fought six rounds to a draw.

SNYDER'S BIRDS WON

First Second and Third Prizes At Delhi.

It has again been demonstrated that Ulster County poultry is in the front rank when judged by experts, as prizes were won by entries from Rosendale in Delaware county, last week. At the annual poultry show held in connection with the annual session and demonstration at the State School of Agriculture at Delhi, January 27, 28th and 29th, William B. Snyder entered three pens of his olds from his Homeland Farm strain of single comb, white leghorn utility chickens. Prof. Botsford, extension instructor of poultry farm management, Department of Husbandry, New York State College of Agriculture, at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., was the judge and awarded first, second and third prizes to Mr. Snyder for his exhibit. These were all the prizes awarded in this class of chickens.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Feb 2.—A few automobiles are beginning to run. It looks good to see them out once more.

Ralph Every of Poughkeepsie was visiting his parents a few days the past week.

Mr. and Mr John Saxe and family and Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Rowe were callers at the home of Wesley Mosher on Sunday.

Miss Ruth Herrick has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. John Davis, of Ashokan.

Thomas McAuliffe attended a party in Hurley Friday night.

Lawrence Joyce, our station agent and son, Paul, who have been quite sick are gaining.

C. P. Hoyt and son, Leslie, who have been working in Passaic, N. J., were home over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Vradenburg and son, Kenneth, spent Friday in Kingston.

Arthur Rowe has been visiting friends in Kingston.

Thermometers have been as low as 18 below zero. People had a hard time to keep from getting their faces frozen.

Frank Kellerhouse and Harold Ostrander spent Sunday in this place.

LEIBHARDT HEIGHTS.

Leibhardt Heights, Feb. 2.—Miss Irene Booth spent Wednesday night at the home of Miss Lula DeWitt.

Miss Jennie DeWitt pleasantly entertained at her home Saturday afternoon Miss Minnie Brown, Miss Luella Horabeck, Miss Emma Pollack and Miss Lula DeWitt. The young ladies have organized a club which is called the "Up and Doing." Every member is to wear the letters U. & D.

Mrs. Amelia Markle called at the home of Mrs. Alex Brown Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gulickson are spending some time visiting with friends and relatives in New York city.

Henry S. DeWitt called at the home of William Horabeck Thursday evening.

Paper in Place of Tin. The Squalfe in Place of the Round Package.

Styles in Packages of Food Products are subject to change as well as in the clothing line.

With some trade the Square Can has been more popular than the Round Can. Costs of package are a very important factor especially the elimination of an expensive container. War times brought substitution for Tin and the round Can, and paper containers have been largely superseded by the square paper cartons.

Modern automatic machinery enables the manufacturer to handle the square cartons to advantage.

Government officials figure that there is a saving in space of 22% by using the square package. This is considerable—three days of freight congestion. There is also a saving of about 20% in weight,—but the great argument in favor of the square carton package as compared with the round tin package is the greatly reduced cost per pound for the container. The cans on being emptied of their contents are thrown away. The square cartons are flattened and rounded to the thirty-two-sides—and it certainly is. The Tin, it is admitted, is a good container but years of experimenting and consistent and general use have proved that the medium carton with its especially prepared lining appears everywhere satisfactorily desired of the trade and delivers its contents in prime condition. The saving of costs per pound to the exhibitor and consequent reason for the general adoption on an efficient, handy container for many other articles sold in packages—such as Food Products. The Square White Enamel Cotton is quite pliable and shipped in the square can the package in every respect—and, in general appearance, of the old round package, thereby saving the consumer some per lb. and by no means reducing the quality.

EXPECT U. S. STUDENTS

French Universities Look for Influx of Americans.

University Union Preparing to Receive and Advise Seekers After Knowledge.

Paris.—Next year is likely to see a great influx of American students to French universities, is the opinion of H. S. Krans, secretary of the American university union in France.

Mr. Krans' new Paris headquarters, facing the Luxembourg gardens, are being fitted up to receive and advise seekers after knowledge from overseas.

Founded shortly after America's entrance in the war, by fifteen of the leading American universities and colleges, the union now has thirty-three American-learned institutions on its membership list, including Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Johns Hopkins, Princeton and other leading universities and colleges throughout the United States.

"Paris is destined to become the brain of the world," said Mr. Krans to a correspondent of the Associated Press. "German universities will be largely avoided by Americans. Dogged determination was shown by one young New York student who arrived here with the problem how to board and live on 6 francs a day.

"Through the medium of the union, a French landlady gave him a small room for 2 francs a day. The young man cooks his own meals, and is 'passing rich' on 4 francs a day."

French teachers and students are constant and eager inquirers at the union's Paris home. Many of them are anxious to take a course of studies in the United States.

Fourteen French students already are studying in American universities on free scholarships from a fund collected by 6,000 American students in recognition of the hospitality extended to them by French universities during the war.

The Society for American Fellowship in French universities is planning to send twenty Americans each year to the Sorbonne and other French seats of learning; nor will the Alsatian university of Strasburg be neglected. Twenty-five scholarships for American girls in France already are filled.

Fitting a Bear With New Teeth.

A grizzly bear may wear out his teeth, just the same as a human being. When he needs new ones he gets them, particularly in America. More animal dentistry has been done here than in any other country. Once, when an old pet bear belonging to the owner of a well-known menagerie was fitted with a complete set of false teeth, it was necessary to glue the plates to the bear's mouth to keep them in place.

The New York American offers $500.00 in cash prices and $100.00 in silver medals, to the school children, for the Best Essays to be written on Lincoln's Birthday. See the New York American for full details.—Advertisement.

INTRODUCING SAHLUKENE
QUEEN OF WITCH DOCTORS

Sahlukene Cele, once queen of the Zulu witch doctors, has abandoned her practice and is studying Christianity. Cele was known as premier "caster out" of "maidenly spirits" in Africa. The Zulus believe these spirits have power to keep eligible young men from proposing. At least, the Zulu debutante thinks this true and when a proposal does not come quickly she seeks the witch doctor. Tribal wars in recent years have made men scarce in Zululand, so Cele was doing a tremendous business when a field worker for the religious, social and economic world survey of the Interchurch World Movement met her. He saw Cele banish spirits with incantation and the smoke from a fire consisting of herbs, leaves, cuttlefish powder, elephant's flesh and a live python. Cele explained that the python's ability to hold tightly was passed on to the maiden that she might keep her betrothed in an everlasting grip. It was through the efforts of Dr. James S. McCord, a Congregationalist medical missionary, that Cele became interested in Christianity. Dr. McCord is now in the United States in the interest of a medical institute to be started in Durban. Here the Zulu witch doctors will be taught medicine and surgery.

Weather and the Death Rate.

The general death rate is found to increase with rising temperature, and to diminish with a falling thermometer. These conclusions are reached by Dexter Edmunds Hunt, jr., of Yale, and are a result of a study of about 200,000 deaths in New York city in connection with the weather on the day of death. The peculiarities seem to apply to all seasons. Variety in the weather is beneficial and stimulating, and it is believed that some variability is as essential as prosperity and unity.

Literally Stumbled on Riches.

About a quarter of a century ago two prospectors in the backwood of Western Australia had put up their tent for the night and determined to trek back to Perth next morning, as their water had proved fruitless. One of them was aroused from sleep by the restlessness of his horse, pottered just outside the tent and, going out to see what was the matter, he tripped in the darkness over a boulder, which proved on examination to be almost pure gold. That was the beginning of Coolgardie.

SOCIALISM HAS MANY BRANDS

According To Testimony At Resumption of Trial of Ousted Five At Albany—State Puts Experts On Stand Who Condemn Movement.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The investigation into the fitness of five suspended Socialist members of the assembly to hold their seats developed today that there are about as many brands and shades of Socialism as there are brands and shades of Democracy or Republicanism.

The judiciary committee of the state assembly and the attorneys on both sides milled around during the forenoon session in a sea of interpretations, definitions and objections, the latter being raised principally by Seymour Stedman, chief counsel for the ousted five.

Peter W. Collins, for years an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and late years a travelling lecturer against Socialism for the Knights of Columbus, was called by the state to testify as an expert on Socialism.

Collins came to court with a great mass of literature which has been circulated by many different kinds of "forward organizations." Stedman interposed objections to practically his every move and reading.

Asked by Martin Conboy, attorney for the state, to define Socialism, Collins replied:

"I would say that from the interpretation by the authorities of Socialism, of Marx, Engles, Leibknecht and down to Debs in our own country, that the prime object of the formation of an industrial organization among the workers is for the purpose of capturing the working class machinery, the trades union movement to use that as a lever, and by means of mass action and revolutionary action, to entirely destroy the existing institutions of society."

Collins went ahead and quoted from a manifesto from the Communist Party, which said:

"The Communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their ends can be obtained only by the forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble by a Socialist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains; they have the world to win."

Collins contended that the principles and aims of Socialism and Communism are identical, which was vehemently denied by Stedman, who objected to the whole matter as irrelevant to the object of the hearings—which is to determine the fitness of the five suspended members to sit in the assembly. It all went into the records, however, despite objections.

The McNamara case was brought out of its grave and aired by Collins. He attempted to read an editorial written by Eugene V. Debs in support of the McNamaras. Stedman again objected.

"By Debs?" interposed Chairman Martin.

"That's the man they're running for president isn't he? Yes, we want that."

In the editorial, Debs scored the American Federation of Labor for its alleged repudiation of the dynamiters and extolled the McNamaras.

Stedman maintained that the pamphlets introduced could not be charged to the Socialists.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—It appeared certain today when the judiciary committee resumed its probe of disloyalty charges against the five suspended Socialist members of the New York assembly that the trial will go to the "bitter end" as opponents of the procedure termed.

All movements towards conciliation or looking toward the discharge of the committee from further consideration of the case have signally failed, for the present at least.

A number of assemblymen, Republicans and Democrats alike, are ready to start proceedings to drop the whole thing at any time when it looks like such a move might have a chance of success. They believe, however, that it would be useless to move in that direction now.

"It would be a waste of time to try to correct or stop the proceedings now," said Assemblyman William C. Amos, of New York.

"The steamroller seems in excellent condition."

Amos has four resolutions already before the assembly designed to relieve the present situation.

The "prosecution" expected when the trial opened today to close its "case" against the five Socialists this week. It is likely that when all the evidence against the Socialists is in, further attempt will be made to have the charges "thrown out of court." If this fails, the Socialists will have their "innings" next week.

The Socialists, it was learned today, plan to put on the stand in their defense, Morris Hillquit, the noted exponent of Socialist doctrines, to testify as an expert. This plan is contingent upon Hillquit's health permitting his appearance. Hillquit is now at Saranac Lake, where he was forced to retire because of ill-health soon after the trial opened in Albany.

The first witness called today was Mitchell Trahan, a merchant of Auburn, who was a member of the assembly in 1918 and who resigned from the body to enter the air service of the army.

John F. Stanchfield, who again headed the "prosecutions" array of counsel, questioned Trahan concerning a resolution which was introduced in the assembly in 1918, by Assemblyman Lind. The resolution eulogized Abraham Lincoln and expressed the sentiment that the American soldiers in the world war were fighting for the principles and ideals of Lincoln.

Over the objection of Seymour Stedman, chief counsel for the Socialists, Trahan testified that when his resolution was called up a viva voce vote was taken and the ten Socialists in the assembly at that time remained seated.

Cross examination by Stedman brought out Trahan's war record and the fact that his father was French.

"Do you know," questioned Stedman, "that Lincoln was against the Mexican war?"

"Have you any proof of that?" interrupted a member of the committee.

"Let's have no argument about it," ordered Chairman Martin.

Trahan was then allowed to go and Peter W. Collins, of Boston, a Knights of Columbus lecturer and orator against Socialism was called to testify as an expert.

Marjorie Easton. ans.

Marjorie Easton, 11 years old, separated from her mother, Damaris Easton, a New York dancer, when 2 years old, told a Baltimore court that she prefers to stay with her foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. King, of Baltimore. Her mother sought possession of Marjorie. Marjorie was permitted to choose between her real mother and her foster-parents.

"Daddy Longlegs" Centuries Old.

All of us are well acquainted with the insect called "daddy longlegs," but not everybody knows that there is evidence to show that this strange little creature, towering high above its fellows on its threadlike stilts, is probably a more ancient inhabitant of America than any representative of the human species. Far back in tertiary times, at the very dawn of the modern world, its ancestors lived, we are told, in great numbers in that part of the continent which we call Colorado. The fossil remains of these insects show the characteristic features that mark them today, although new species have taken the place of the old, for even "daddy longlegs" knows what evolution is and has attained to something that, in his view, is perhaps a kind of civilized existence suitable to the exigencies of life in the twentieth century.

Where Martin Luther Begged.

Martin Luther sang in the streets of Magdeburg, along with other church choristers, for the bread and coins that citizens might bestow. This begging was the recognized means of support of the children of the "poor schools" attended by sons of peasants, who obtained free lodging at the hospices of the church, had free tuition, and were granted the privilege of singing for their meals. In return they were expected to sing in the choir of the church which supported their school. Modern Magdeburg is the capital of the Prussian province of Saxony. The city was well fortified. It is nearly ninety miles southwest of Berlin, lies mostly on the left bank of the Elbe, and is an important railway center.

Home of Pump Inventor.

Magdeburg was the home city of Otto von Guericke, inventor of the air pump, one of the few original inventions that can be credited to Germany despite the German fostered impression to the contrary. Students of physics will recall a principle of physics proved by what is often called the "Magdeburg experiment." Von Guericke is said to have demonstrated his discovery of the possibilities of the vacuum to Ferdinand III by clamping together two parts of a copper sphere, from which the air was then exhausted and hitching 15 horses to each hemisphere. The story that the horses could not pull the hemispheres apart may be an exaggeration, but the principle is sound.

Kidding Yourself.

Of course, it is easy to be mistaken. Also, it is easy to misjudge, miscalculate, misunderstand. But think how often the average person actually lies to himself about small matters! Think how often the average person tries to thus fool himself or others in spite of the fact, footnoted by centuries of human experience, that this, like all other forms of murder, will out! Yes, lying is a form of murder, for it is the killing of truth. And that makes it a serious form of murder.—Gelt.

Few See World at Its Best.

It is indeed marvelous to consider how few are the people who get up early in the morning. If we leave out the milkmen and the farmer, we might say that nobody knows it is daytime until the sun has risen far on its course. Every hour of all the 24 has a charm of its own. Night is very beautiful and so is noon time. But, there can be no doubt at all that the world is more beautiful at the dawn of day than at any other time.—Los Angeles Times.

BURGLAR SENDS BACK $100

Returns Money Order and Rail Tickets With "Regrets."

The burglar who has been visiting homes in Rutherford, N. J., recently sent back by mail to Mrs. John N. Hickok, one of his victims, a money order for $100 and a ten-trip railroad ticket. In the envelope with the returned plunder was a slip of paper bearing the word "regrets."

The letter was mailed in Rutherford. Mrs. Hickok's home was entered last Thursday evening. Five similar burglaries were reported to the police during the week. In no other instance, apparently, did the thief find himself burdened with unnegotiable valuables.

Primrose Legend.

The primrose is an emblem in Devonshire. Let youth or maid visit the flower, and, after casting off the right of the statement, lay it in a secret place. Let youth dream through the night of his sweetheart. Upon looking at it the next day, if he find the statement short of it be their former delight, even love will attend; if not, disappointment.

First American Railroad.

Although America's railroad history is recorded as beginning when the Baltimore & Ohio laid its first rails in 1828, a pair of rusted strips of iron still visible in eastern Massachusetts tell of a pioneer transportation line whose inauguration antedated that event by two years. From the granite quarries of West Quincy the old road ran four miles to tidewater on the Neponset river, and carried granite for the building of the Bunker Hill monument. The rails of hand-forged iron, two inches wide and three-quarter inch thick, were held by hand-forged spikes to the granite roadbed. Mules were the locomotives, assisted by a cable where the grade was heavy.

How Many Can You See?

When sunlight is broken up into its different rays the person of normal eyesight can tell six different colors. They are red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet. A few persons can see a seventh color, an indigo blue. Color blindness begins with those who can see but five colors in the sun spectrum; they cannot identify an orange-colored light. The next point in color blindness is the confusion between blue and green lights. Color blindness becomes serious when a person confuses green and yellow, and there are those who even cannot distinguish red from green.

Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes—the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation—have added dollars to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars.

The freight on it has increased only 5½ cents.

Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mills and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents more.

A given unit of any commodity will buy more transportation now than it ever did before in the history of the country. A ton of steel or a bushel of wheat will buy more transportation now than ever before.

Walker D. Hines
Director General of Railroads

The $10 pair of shoes that used to sell for $5 goes from the New England factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 5⅔ cents—only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent a pound freight from Chicago to New York.

American freight rates are the lowest in the world.

FIRST GAS MASK WAS DESIGNED BY WOMAN

Invention Used in War Was Planned by Mrs. J. B. Garner of Pittsburgh.

It is claimed that the first gas mask based upon the use of charcoal for the absorption of highly poisonous gases from the atmosphere, the principle which in actual practice was so valuable to the armies in the world war, was made by the late Mrs. J. B. Garner of Pittsburgh, Pa. This statement is made at the Mellon Institute of Research at Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Garner, wife of the director of research of an important natural gas company there, became interested in the experiments her husband was conducting with the gases which at that time, early in 1915, had appeared on the battlefield of Europe. When the principle was once established, the institute declared, Mrs. Garner designed and made gas masks of the canister type, and in June, 1915, they were handed over to the representatives in America of the British government. They were sent to England, and from this first design other gas masks were made.

When the United States entered the war, full details of the experimental work and all apparatus that had been employed were supplied to the government.

Mrs. Garner, whose husband is a fellow of the Mellon Institute of Research, died a year ago.

OWL NO BEDFELLOW

Parrot Ran Away When Owner Wanted Him to Sleep With It.

Eustace, a South American parrot, ran away from his home in Hayward, Cal., because his owner wanted him to sleep with a tame owl. He tied up a street car, scared a crew out of seven years' optimism and aroused a block of residents before his spirit of adventure died out and he could be induced to go home.

Eustace belongs to Martin Mervin, a musician. Mervin was given a tame owl. All birds look alike to him, and he bedded the owl in the parrot's cage. The parrot chattered his objections but the owl stared at him in adenoid reproach and calmly went to sleep on his side of the perch which swings in a summer house. Whereupon Eustace made his own plans.

At ten o'clock a car crew was reversing a trolley for a return trip to Oakland, when they heard wild shrieks and yells from under the wheels.

"Great heavens!" shouted the conductor. "We've run over a child or a woman!"

The conductor ran from house to house, arousing citizens to get help. Automobile parties halted. Finally one autoist turned his spotlight under the car. There, perched on a truss rod was Eustace, engaged in leaving home and shrieking his derision of owls, owners and the world in general.

Mervin, who was among those awakened, finally dragged his parrot from under the car by his gaudy tail feathers and gave him an owlless perch, and the night turned quiet again. Eustace appeared at reveille serenely content.

WOLVES IN BARNYARD

Two of the Timber Variety Killed in Such a Place.

Two timber wolves were killed on the farm of John Zerr at St. Peters, Mo., four miles north of St. Charles.

Zerr and Frank Wiechens, a farmer, were standing in the barnyard on the Zerr farm when they saw a wolf run out of a timber lot near the barn and kill several chickens. Wiechens had a gun and killed the wolf as it was crossing the lot.

As there had been evidence of a number of wolves in the vicinity, Zerr and Wiechens went to St. Peters to organize a hunt. While there they received word from Mrs. Zerr that another wolf was in the barnyard. Accompanied by several men they went and Zerr shot the wolf, making [illegible] that seven killed in that neighborhood in the last month.

Paddon, the famed Australian sculler, has challenged Felton to a championship match, the race to be for $2,500 a side and to be contested on the Parramatta river, Australia. Felton, who is shown in the insert, recently won the world's championship from Ernest Barry of England.

YOUNG BOB AVOIDS MANAGER

Son of Former Champion of World Refuses to Place Himself Under Care of Director.

Speaking of managers, we heard a story that throws an interesting sidelight on the reason why Young Bob Fitzsimmons is doing his own managerial work. We mentioned the other day that the son of the former champion of the world ought to put himself under the careful eye of some man who knew the game, says a writer in Bob Fitzsimmons.

Brooklyn Eagle. The story was responsible for a phone message from a man who knows Young Bob and knows him well.

"What you said the other day about Young Bob needing a manager," said the man at the other end of the wire, "is fine dope, but I'll tell you something you don't know.

"Bob's father is responsible," said our informant. "Before he died he warned Young Bob about managers and told him to do all of his own ring business himself. Young Bob believes everything his father told him. That is the reason why he won't have a manager."

This twenty-two-year-old youngster, is son of the former champion heavyweight, whose recent debut in Newark has caused him to be the most sought-for boxer in the country today.

Young Fitz is a light heavyweight, and is said to be one of the cleverest big fellows ever seen in a ring.

BOYS EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Bonner

TENNESSEE WARBLER.

"I suppose we have such a great deal to tell folks about ourselves," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler to his mate.

"Well," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler, "you might describe me and I might describe you. We both might be too modest about ourselves, and it would be fairer for each to describe the other."

"That's a good suggestion," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler. "Well, who will begin?"

"You begin," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler.

"I think I had better do the good, old-fashioned way of letting the ladies go first," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler.

"But I'm not going anywhere," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler.

"No, my love," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler, "but it is true of more things than going. It means that ladies should walk through a door first or enter the nest first, and that they should speak first and be considered first."

"But I'm a little bird," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler. "I'm not a lady."

"But birds are always behaving like little ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler, "so we had better do it in this case, too. Now, you give the description first. At any rate it's dividing the honors, for if you give the description first it is to be about me, for you're to describe me, and I'm to describe you."

"That's so," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler; "well, I agree to that.

"In the first place," she began, "you have a gray head and a beautiful dull, simple, stylish suit of light color, and the back of your suit is of most beautiful greenish hue. By hue I mean color," she explained.

"You shouldn't really be called the Tennessee bird any more than you should be called the bird of any other state or territory or province. But you were seen first in that state, and so you were given your name.

"You look like the vireos, except your little beak is different, as mine is different.

"Your voice is lovely. It is a cheery little voice like that of the chipping sparrow. Of course some mightn't think so much of your voice, but I like it, for it is so sweet and cheerful, and that often means more than beautiful notes.

"What Is It?"

"And in the winter we live in Central and South America."

"The description you give of me is one which I could give of you, too, except that your head is of the same color as your back and isn't different like mine," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler, "and there are a few things you forgot to tell about us which I will tell.

"We go far up north when it is warm, in the summer time, so we're really great travelers."

"And oh, Mr. Tennessee Warbler, I forgot to say something," said Mrs. Tennessee Warbler, looking up at her mate with her lovely little beadlike eyes.

"What is it you forgot to say?" chirped Mr. Tennessee Warbler.

"I didn't say anything about the nest and the precious eggs. Would folks be interested in hearing about the nest and the eggs?"

"Of course they would, my love," said Mr. Tennessee Warbler.

"We have a nest of grass, lined with soft hair, and we always have it low down, near the ground, on the ground, or in low bushes, don't we, Mr. Warbler?

"That's the kind of a neighborhood we always want to be in," agreed Mr. Warbler, cocking his head to one side.

"And the eggs," whispered Mrs. Warbler, "are white with reddish specks on them. They're very lovely, and they make little warblers later on."

"They do," said Mr. Warbler, "and you make a lovely little bird mother, as do they make nice little birdlings for the nest."

"I hope they like hearing about the eggs," said Mrs. Warbler, "for hearing about them, and so never hurting them."

"You needn't worry, Mrs. Warbler, no one would hurt a lovely bird and her precious feelings, I feel sure," said her mate.

Jones Was the "It."

Jimmy—I say, Mr. Jones, what do you think my sister said about you this evening?

Jones (lover's admirer)—Really, Jimmy, I'll have to give it up.

"Yes, that's what she said. How did you guess it?"—London Answers.

IN BANGKOK

A View in Bangkok.

AT Singapore the traveler bound for Siam quits the liner and embarks upon one of the small steamers which take the mails to Bangkok. The steamer makes for the low mangrove-fringed shore which marks his destination and presently enters the muddy Bangkok river, writes P. A. Thompson in "Siam." On either side stretch salt marshes, soon hidden behind the luxuriant vegetation. Here on the oozy banks are fern-like attap and rank tropical growths half submerged, while rising from the firmer ground behind are the slender trunks and graceful fronds of areca and coconut palms.

Bangkok is twelve miles from the coast in a direct line, but so tortuous is the river that it is fully three hours before we arrive. Here a score of small steamers are anchored in midstream. Others lie alongside the wharfs, together with sailing vessels of all descriptions: merchantmen from Europe, rice boats from up country, and fishing boats from the gulf. Everywhere we see Chinese toiling. Boats ply to and fro between the banks, and every now and then the little vessels are set dancing and plunging in the wash of the steam launches which tear by. At length we, too, draw in to a wharf and land amidst piles of goods.

Motley Throng in the Street.

Behind the wharfs and mills which line the river on its eastern side, we come upon a long street, white and dusty in the dry months, and in the rainy season a lane of mud. Here at all seasons a motley crowd of Chinese, Siamese, Malays, Hindus and Mahometans jostle each other, while coolies toil along at a foot pace with 'rickshaws in the last stages of dilapidation. A crazy gharry, bearing a distant resemblance to a London growler and drawn by a diminutive pony, bumps over the uneven surface, and on one side of the road electric trams, packed with natives, are screeching along the ill-laid track. None of these methods of locomotion appeals to us, nor do we feel inclined to jungle with the throng of pedestrians. However, if we are lucky we may find near by a stable, at which we may hire a pair-horse gharry, a sort of miniature victoria. We will not look on while the ponies are being put in, for it is not well to know exactly how much string is used in the composition of our harness. It is certain that the proportion is large, but if only the reins hold out we must be thankful. * * *

On either side are rows of one-storied wooden houses. The shops on the ground floor are quite open to the street, and we can see Chinese carpenters, tailors and bootmakers at work inside, while elsewhere cheap cotton goods and hardware are displayed. Now and then we pass a Chinese joss-house with fantastic roof-ridge, and through the open door we see an altar decked with tinsel and peacocks' feathers. * * *

Official Quarter and Royal Palace.

Our driver expects us to direct him at every step, so if we say nothing he will keep straight on and we shall presently come to the old city wall, whitewashed now, and much disfigured with telegraph wires, but with picturesque battlements shaped like the leaves of the sacred Bo tree. Within we are at once sensible of a great improvement as we bowl over the well-kept surface of a broad avenue, planted with plane trees, and bordered by neat rows of brick houses. As we cross a canal we catch a glimpse of trees reflected in the water, and trim lawns, and beyond them pagodas blazing with pure gold in the sunlight. This is the official quarter. * * * Here, too, is the Royal Palace, whose brilliant roofs and iridescent spires are seen over the dazzling whiteness of the outer wall.

Just outside the city wall is the Golden Mount, a hill-shaped mound, faced with brick, but so overgrown by trees that it has the appearance of a natural hillock. On the summit is a little shrine surmounted by a pagoda, and to it leads a flight of steps, winding about a hill. From here we look down upon a forest of palms and plane trees, through which break the red roofs of the houses. Everywhere the [illegible] where the trees are graceful spires and the manifold roofs of temples with their tiles of rich orange or deep purple, great splashes of color against the clear blue sky. To this place we may often return to watch the dawn stealing over the paddy fields, whilst at our feet the palm trees rise through a veil of purple mist; or when at evening the pink rays of the setting sun are shooting halfway to the zenith we may come up here and see the thousand pinnacles of Bangkok, outlined in the rifts between low-lying clouds against a smoky orange sky.

KEEP BUSY AND LIVE LONG

Notable Examples of Longevity Among Men Who Have Elected to Remain in "Harness."

Maybe it used to be that "the good die young," but it doesn't look as though they're doing it now.

Take, for instance, Rev. Albert Vogel of Jeannette, Pa.

He's one hundred and two years old.

He's never smoked or chewed tobacco or drank intoxicating liquor. Never quarreled or fought with another man. Always trying to do good and to persuade others to behave themselves.

Rev. Mr. Vogel is the oldest active minister of the gospel in the United States.

Hard work, lots of walking and an occasional fishing trip is his formula for a long and happy life.

And this reminds us that Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard is president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting association, New York, and is ninety-eight years old.

"I never would have lived to this age," Doctor Ballard said, "if I had retired at sixty and commenced twirling my thumbs in idleness."

So it seems the good don't die young—if they keep busy.—New York World.

SAYINGS OF CARNEGIE

Educate man and his shackles fall.

I hope Americans will some day find more time for play, like the wiser brethren on the other side.

Immense power is acquired by assuring yourself in your secret reveries that you were born to control affairs.

The day is coming and already we see it dawn, in which the man who dies possessed of millions of available wealth which was free and in his hands ready to be distributed, will die disgraced.

Labor, capital and business ability are three legs of a three-legged stool; neither is first, neither is second, neither is third; there is no precedence, all being equally necessary. He who would sow discord among the three is an enemy to all.

The first and most seductive peril, and the destroyer of most men, is the drinking of liquor. (Mr. Carnegie himself was a total abstainer, and gave his employees at Skibo castle a 10 per cent advance on their wages every year they reported that they had not touched liquor).—From the Books and Public Addresses of the Ironmaster.

Fish That Spin Silk.

Silk stockings are very expensive nowadays, says Pearson's Weekly.

The most costly of all this kind of hosiery, however, is made from silk which is not the product of the silkworm but a species of shellfish called a pinna.

The pinna makes its home in the warm waters of the Mediterranean round Sicily. It has an odd little tuft at the end of the tongue.

Out of this tuft—called fruition, or byssus fasciculus, it spins silk thread with which it fastens itself to any rock to which it wishes to adhere.

When the pinna wants to go to fresh feeding grounds its silken cable is left behind. This cable, which is called [illegible] the Sicilian fishermen gather, spends months into the softest, finest, silkiest of fabrics; but it is very rare, and the stockings women form it cost—as it has been said—extraordinarily expensive.

BELOW ZERO

By OTILLIA F. PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union.)

He was a dreamer and a sentimentalist, but a genius as well, so the combination was rational to a degree. To the little community of Newton he was known as Jarvis Morton, a newcomer, living in a modest cottage with his mother and reputed to be an artist. In the live and active world his newspaper pen and ink sketches had begun to make him a name.

He was standing at the window of a cold and cheerless room, but not gazing outside, for the frost lay like a blanket across the panes. The merest excuse for a fire spluttered in the grate. On an easel was a drawing board with a sheet of paper tacked to it. The outline of a fair girlish face showed, but only half finished. Too cold to continue careful work, but the creative impulse always seeking expression, he applied the pencil tip to the frosted pane and began sketching that same face.

Amid his abstraction he had not heard a knock at the frosted portal nor footsteps in the hallway. The door of the room was timidly pressed open.

"If you please, if you are Mr. Morton," commenced a pleasing voice, and its owner, girlish and attractive, faltered. Her glance had fallen upon the limned face on the easel and its more finished duplicate on the window pane. Surprise, pleasure, wonderment and admiration blended.

Jarvis Morton turned to instantly recognize the original of his art effort. He had seen her across two vacant lots several times, but had never spoken to her. He spoke now, with an encouraging smile, for she had become timid and embarrassed.

"I am Jarvis Morton," he said. "You are our neighbor, I believe, Miss Ilisley?"

"Yes, Marian Ilisley," hurried on the girl, fluttering. "If you please, your mother sent me over. It is so cold and slippery outside that I wished to save her exposure and discomfort. She came over to use our telephone to hurry up the load of coal you ordered. The dealer says they haven't a pound of fuel in the yard, and mother says that this coal shortage makes us all like one family, and the weather man says the cold snap will last for a week, and you people are to bring over some comforters and lock up the house, and we'll do the rest."

"And what a beneficent 'rest!'" rejoined Jarvis brightly. "This isn't mere hospitality. It's a real rescue from freezing to death! I was just thinking of splitting up a couple of chairs and muffling in all the blankets in the house and hibernating until the zero menace was gone."

His joyousness was manifest, and she entered into the enlivening mood of the occasion with demure, but pretty graciousness.

"You see, we managed to just grab the famine by getting a ton of coal delivered yesterday," she resumed. "Your mother insists on bringing over whatever there is cooked in the house."

"Won't you help me rummage the larder?" suggested Jarvis, and they laughed and chatted like two happy children as they loaded up a clothes basket. Then Jarvis went to secure the blankets. When he returned Marian stood surveying the easel sketch.

"How nice to be able to draw like that," she ventured, detected at studying her own presentment.

"And how fortunate was I to catch your face as a study while you were cleaning the snow this morning!" said Jarvis. "When the sketch is finished I shall call it 'The Snow Queen.' The newspaper asked for something wintery, and that graceful twirl of the snow shovel and the shimmery fabric forming an airy veil just filled the bill."

"Oh! it won't be printed, will it?" marveled Marian. "Me in the paper! How strange it will seem to me! It must be delightful to be able to make the world look at whatever you wish to draw."

"Bless the coal shortage!" mused the artist and lover after four days' sojourn in the cozy Ilisley home, for the latter he had unconsciously become, and the fulfillment of a cherished ideal of loveliness, artless innocence and silent but sweet devotion had brought a bewildering joy to his impressible heart. It seemed as if his mother had emerged from direful loneliness into perfect enjoyable comradeship, shut in from the outside world with happy-spirited Marian Ilisley. Marian flitted about the little house with smiles and bright service, making it a delight to Jarvis to look at, to see and to cherish her. He frowned when the cold moderated, he grieved when he realized that they must soon leave this eden of perfectness.

"What a happy four we would make!" he soliloquized one day, sitting at the window, he began sketching on a lightly frosted pane, and Marian glanced into the room.

"Come here, please," he spoke, with a bright sparkle in his eye. At the door she had first seen him, all a year before she now joined him, and as she bended her head gently she flushed and trembled, as she read:

"I love you."

Then, in pretty embarrassment, for completely quiet, she penned in turn, simple words:

"I love you, too!"

HINES GIVES OUT NO DECISION

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, Feb. 3.—Director General Hines and the chieftains of the railroad brotherhoods struggled with the problems of the high cost of living and demands for increased wages today for nearly three hours without reaching an agreement as to whether wages shall be increased.

The conference will continue late this afternoon.

Director General Hines stated that the discussion had not reached the point yet where either side had surely met the issue.

It is known that one of two counter-propositions which Director General Hines proposed to the brotherhoods was the submission of their demands to a commission to be named by the president.

PEOPLE TO PASS ON RESEATING

Republican Assemblyman Simpson Wants to Resign, Have Governor Call Special Election, and Then Run Again on Platform Declaring Proceedings Against Socialists Unjustified.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The question of reseating the five suspended Socialist members of the assembly pending trial of their qualifications for their seats, is to become a political issue, it developed this afternoon.

Assemblyman William T. Simpson, of Brooklyn, one of the Republican members who originally voted to unseat the Socialists, today offered to resign his seat of Governor Smith will agree to call immediately a special election in his district in which Simpson can run on the single platform whether the Socialists should be reseated pending their trial.

"I would like to try an experiment of the English system," Simpson said. "If the governor will call a special election in my district, I will be willing to resign and go before the voters on a platform declaring that the proceedings are unjustified and that the Socialists should be reseated. In that way it would be possible to get a correct reflection of the sentiment among the voters on this subject."

Insects Give Us Shellac.

Shellac is the joint product of insects and plants and comes from India. The lac insects are about one-twenty-fifth of an inch long, a bright red in color. They suck the juices of plants, digest them and exude them in the form of resin, which soon encloses the whole insect. When the young insects have emerged out, the resin is scraped from the branches, ground, washed, mixed with colophony and orpiment, melted slowly and drawn out into the thin sheets we know as shellac.

DANIELS REPLIES TO SIMS CHARGES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Charging that Admiral Sims had slurred the navy and offered "an insult to the splendid men of the navy," Secretary Daniels today appeared before the sub-committee investigating naval medal awards and offered a lengthy and comprehensive defense of his action in bestowing decorations.

"It is an insult to the splendid men of the navy to say that the morale of the service could be seriously impaired by any question of awards to individuals," Secretary Daniels said. "They are made of sterner stuff than to be rattled by a matter so unimportant in comparison with their devotion to their duties. Their loyalty is in no sense dependant upon medals.

"The morale of the navy has suffered from the same influences that have affected the whole country which has not yet recovered from the shell shock of war."

Secretary Daniels in an indirect way charged Admiral Sims with being a "shore-going" sailor, and declared that the greatest difference between them had been as to the relative importance of shore duty and sea duty.

Secretary Daniels declared that if Admiral Sims's contention that men who lost their ships in action were not deserving of honors was sound, then the nation has been paying tribute to men like Lawrence and Sigsbee, who should not have been honored.

"There are plenty of men like Lawrence and Sigsbee, just as deserving of high honor whose ships, through no lack of deathless valour, could not be saved," the secretary said.

MISSION SCHOOL

In Session Again At Rondout Presbyterian Church.

The first session of the School of Missions held in the chapel of the Rondout Prebyterian Church last Thursday night proved fully as delightful an occasion as its promoters had hoped.

After a family supper that was substanial, hot and delicious, groups were formed at the tables for the study and discussion of Finance, Life Ideals and various phases of Americanization. The little folks gathered around Dr. Ellis to follow with him the adventures of the Honorable Crimson Tree. The hour of study—all too brief—ended with family worship and dismissal promptly at 8:30. Every member of the congregation is cordially invited to attend this week on Thursday evening. Supper will be served from 6 to 7. Each person is at liberty to choose whichever class appeals to him most and either join the discussion or listen to it.

STATE GRANGE IN CONVENTION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The opening session of the 47th annual convention of the New York State Grange here this morning was featured by the address of State Master F. J. Lowell. He urged activity by the Grange to oppose any efforts in Albany to enact a daylight saving law; recommended favorable action on a proposal to appropriate ten millions of dollars a year for ten years and "pay as we go" for good roads; announced the creation of an extension fund for enlarging the scope of organization and "to clear our skies of the clouds of anarchistic thought and red propaganda" which now threatens our agriculture; urged a fair listing of personal property and stated the opposition of the Grange to government ownership.

H. C. Jewett, past master of the Massachusetts State Grange, extended the greetings of that organization to the convention. The annual election will be held tomorrow. There are five candidates for the office of secretary. W. N. Giles, present secretary, is expected to be elected to the office of master.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Clifford Clark, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark of 52 Jefferson street, Poughkeepsie died on Saturday after a short illness of pneumonia. The body was taken to Kerhonkson Sunday and the funeral was held Monday.

Tomorrow will be the eighth anniversary of the death of the Right Rev. Richard L. Burtsell, for twenty-two years rector of St. Mary's Church. An anniversary Mass will be offered tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock at St. Mary's Church.

Father Joseph Snyder, C. SS. R., died Monday of pneumonia in a hospital at Erie, Pa. He was about 56 years of age and was in charge of all the institutions of the Redemptorist Fathers in several states. He was responsible for the erection of Mount St. Alphonsus Seminary at Esopus.

The funeral of Mrs. Michael Solon was held Monday from her late residence at Cutler Hill, Eddyville, and from the Church of the Sacred Heart. The Rev. Cornelius Norris celebrated the Mass of requiem and accompanied the remains to the cemetery. The cortege was large and many friends and relatives attended the services.

Miss Flora Schoonmaker of New Paltz died this morning at the Benedictine Sanitarium of pneumonia. She was assistant postmistress at New Paltz for years and had a large acquaintance of friends. She was a sister of Judson Schoonmaker, of the firm of J. J. Hasbrouck & Co., also a sister of Mrs. Harvey Gregory, whoe husband is the druggist of New Paltz, and a cousin of D. G. Atkins of this city. The funeral will be held at New Paltz Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

John Snyder, of Highland, well known as a contractor died in Vassar Brothers' Hospital, Sunday, following an illness of less than one week of pneumonia. Mr. Snyder was taken to Vassar Hospital, where it was known from the first that there was little hope of saving his life. His wife and three children are all seriously ill at their home at Highland. Mr. Synder came from Pennsylvania, his native state, after graduating from the Cornell School of Architecture.

The funeral of Benigaro Rodriguez, who died last Sunday from injuries received while working on the Shandaken tunnel, was held this morning at 8:30 o'clock from the parlors of Grogan & Scherer, and at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's Church, where a requiem Mass was celebrated for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Charles B. McCabe. The funeral was largely attended by a number of Spanish friends of the deceased from New York city and Newark, N. J. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Captain Hugh Mackey, well known in boating circles along the Hudson river, died on Monday in Lincoln's Hospital in New York city, following a stroke. He was captain in charge of a coal barge of the Pennsylvania Coal Company of Edgewater, N. J., and was suddenly taken ill about a week ago. He was a member of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, F. A. M., and of Kingston Lodge of Odd Fellows. He was a man of genial character and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife, three sons, George, John and Charles Mackey, all of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Nellie Tungus of Schenectady.

Andrew McGuire, who died at his home on the Kingston-Saugerties road, about a mile from this city, where he kept a small general store, was for a long time either a constable for the town of Ulster or a deputy sheriff. For a number of years he owned a cider and vinegar plant on the Saugerties road. He was in ill health for about three years, and his death was caused by a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. McGuire was 70 years of age. He is survived by his wife, Amelia, and four sons, Andrew, Jr., Arthur, Robert and William; a sister, Mrs. John Carpenter, and a brother, John J. McGuire of New Paltz. The funeral will be held Thursday morning from the residence at 9:00 o'clock thence to St. Joseph's Church where a solemn Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul at 9:30 o'clock. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Herman R. Goodsell, brick mould manufacturer, died Monday at his home, No. 9 Grove street, after a long illness. Mr. Goodsell had been a resident of Ponckhockie for many years, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. His factory is located at No. 289 East Union street, and he was the first to manufacture brick moulds in the Hudson river valley. Mr. Goodsell always took an interest in the civic development of the city, and was one of the best known citizens of Kingston. He is survived by his wife and three children, Charles DuBois Goodsell of Newark, N. J., and Oscar A. Goodsell at home, and Miss Jessie R. Goodsell at home. The funeral services will be held from the late residence Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery. The Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, pastor of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, will officiate at the services.

RYAN DENOUNCES SWEET'S ACTION

In Ousting Socialists—Letter to Hillquit Congratulates Him on "Magnificent Fight" at Albany—"Most Brazen Outrage."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—The Rev. Father John Ryan, of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., and one of the most persistent opponents of Socialist ideas in the United States, has written Morris Hillquit, chief of counsel for the five suspended Socialist assemblymen, denouncing the attempts to bar the Socialists from the state legislature as "the most brazen and insidious political outrage that has been committed in this country since 1877."

Father Ryan's letter was made public by the publicity committee for the defense of the Socialists. His letter follows:

"When I was in New York Friday, I telephoned your residence with the intention of congratulating you on the very able and altogether magnificent fight that you have been making at Albany on behalf of fair play and representative government. What I wanted to say to you then I say to you now: 'you and your associates are combating the most brazen and insidious political outrage that has been committed in this country since 1877.' I agree with the social and political principles held by your five clients as little today as in the days when you and I crossed swords in the pages of Everybody's Magazine, but I hope I still believe in justice, in Democracy, in the reign of law.

"Possibly my desire to see your present cause triumph is not altogether unselfish; for I see quite clearly that if the five Socialists representatives are expelled from the New York assembly on the ground that they belong, and avow loyalty, to an organization which the autocratic majority regards as 'inimical to the best interests of the state of New York,' a bigoted majority, in say the legislature of Georgia, may use the action as a precedent to keep out of that body regularly elected members who belong to the Catholic Church. For there have been majorities in the legislature of more than one southern state that have looked upon the Catholic Church exactly as Speaker Sweet looks upon the Socialist party."

Hamps Belongs to Vermont.

The first state added to the original 13 composing the United States, was Vermont. The Green Mountain state had a varied career up to the time of its entrance into the Union. Two centuries ago a tract of southern Vermont was granted to Connecticut. In 1768 New York claimed the territory of Vermont under grants from Charles II. to the duke of York, and ordered the sheriff to return the names of those who had settled in Vermont under titles from New Hampshire, which had also made grants in the territory. A dispute arose between the latter colony and New York, the claims of which were later sustained by the king. The "Green Mountain Boys," under Ethan Allen, were organized to oppose the "Yorkers," and later played a prominent part in the Revolution. After the establishment of the Republic New York's claims were overthrown and Vermont became an independent state.

Gradgitis.

Not long ago a remarkable woman died in Lincoln. When she was about twenty-one years old she became engaged to a young man whom her father did not wish her to marry. In her angry disappointment she took to her bed and remained there for 73 years, dying at the age of ninety-four. This is a striking instance of the disease that might be named "Gradgitis." It is a sad sickness. It injures everyone around, but most of all the originator of it. It has a way of magnifying itself if attention is paid to it, and it grows immediately better if neglected. When it once gets a grip on one, it is worse than typhoid, pneumonia, tuberculosis, and smallpox put together. Avoid gradgitis as you would the plague!—Exchange.

How Old is Chess?

Just exactly how old chess really is nobody knows. Some authorities credit Palamedes with the invention of it, and Palamedes was a Grecian hero of the Trojan war, meaning that the game dates back as far as 1000 B. C. But even more astounding is the fact that a game essentially the same as modern chess was played in Hindustan nearly 5,000 years ago. Thence it spread to Persia, after that to Arabia and finally came into Spain in the eighth century. After that, of course, it attained to popularity in nearly all western Europe. It is the most intellectual of all games of skill and sponsored by the intellectuals of all centuries. Indeed our own Dr. Benjamin Franklin was an enthusiastic player of chess.

FIRE RAGING AT GLENS FLALS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Fire departments from three towns are fighting a fire which has destroyed the central business section of Hudson Falls, made two hundred apartment dwellers homeless, burned many stores and is threatening to spread to St. Mary's Church and rectory. Thrilling rescues were made and it is believed that all the occupants of the burning building escaped without harm. Persons residing in the vicinity of the doomed district packed up their household belongings in the early hours of this morning, when the blaze was raging at its fiercest, expecting that it would at any moment spread to their homes. The fire started in a Greek restaurant in the Middleworth block, it is thought, from the explosion of a stove.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Feb. 3.—Stocks were under pressure at the opening of the stock market today, with losses of from fractions to over two points suffered in all the active issues. Steel Common sold at 104⅛. Baldwin Locomotive after selling at 117⅝ fell to 115¾ while Republic Steel dropped nearly 2 points to 112½ and Crucible Steel 2¼ to 217. All the oil issues were in supply. Mexican Petroleum falling 2⅝ to 192; Royal Dutch 2⅛ to 105⅛; Middle States Oil 1⅝ to 37¾; Pan-American Petroleum 1⅝ to 90⅝ and Sinclair Oil nearly 1 point to 40⅛. General Motors yielded 3 points to 282½, while Studebaker fell over 1 point to 103⅛. U. S. Rubber after selling up to 127¼ yielded one point. International Paper was active falling 2¼ to 80½. American Woolen yielded 2¼ to 149⅝. The copper and railroad issues showed fractional losses.

Trading was orderly in the forenoon in the leading issues. Many specialties, however, broke abruptly on small dealings. The tone on the whole was weak. Steel Common fell fractionally to 104⅜ while losses of from 1 to 3 points were suffered in other steels. Baldwin fell 2 points to 115⅝; Republic Steel over 2 points to 111⅝ and Bethlehem Steel B over 2 points to 94¼. General Motors fell 7 points to 258½ and Pierce Arrow yielded 2 points to 67¼. Central Leather fell over 1 point to 90¼ and International Paper over 2 points to 80. Endicott-Johnson fell over four points.

The crash in the foreign exchange market was the basis for further selling in the early afternoon and severe losses were suffered in the entire list. Steel Common sold off over 1 point to 103⅝. Crucible fell over 6 points while losses of four points were suffered in Baldwin and Republic Steel. General Motors dropped nine points and Texas Company six points to 184. English pound yielded to a new low price of $3.25⅝.

The market closed weak; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds weak.

Word to the Women.

It may not begin under attention, but 209,182,000 needles were made in the United States last year. It would be pleasant mental recreation for a long evening to figure how many hours of labor, based on the pursuit that a stitch in time saves nine, would have been saved the women of the nation if all these needles had been applied at the psychological moment.

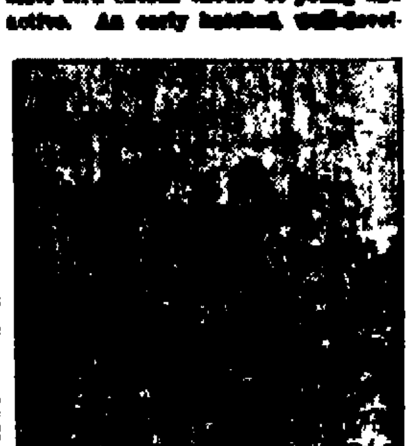
POULTRY

TO RAISE HEALTHY CHICKENS

Lack of Vigor in Newly Hatched Chicks Is Often Traceable to Weakness of Parents.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To be successful in raising chickens it is necessary to have healthy and vigorous breeding stock, for the lack of vigor in the newly hatched chicks is often traceable to weak parents. Only the most vigorous and the best grown birds should be put in the breeding yards. Each bird should be full of life and energy and free from any serious deformity. Yearling hens are usually better than pullets for breeders, for the reason that the hens are more mature and do not lay so many eggs during the early winter and consequently do not reduce their vitality so much before the breeding season. Vigorous hens 2 to 4 years old can often be advantageously retained in the breeding yard. The male bird chosen should be young and active. An early hatched, well-developed cockerel is usually satisfactory, or a good vigorous yearling or 2-year-old cock may be chosen. The hens used for breeding purposes should be given the best care possible; they should be provided with large runs, and should not be forced for heavy egg production during the early winter.



Healthy and Vigorous Farm Flock.

DIPPING CHICKENS FOR LICE

Likely to Become More General Than Dipping Cattle Because Pest Is More Numerous.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Dip that chick!" It isn't done just for the sake of making a rhyme for "dip that tick," either. Dipping chickens is likely to become more general than dipping cattle, because the chicken louse is a more widely distributed insect than the cattle tick. The "dip" consists of 1 ounce of sodium fluoride to the gallon of water, which should be at a temperature of 70 to 85 degrees. The dipping should be done on a clear, warm day—never on a cold day. The old way of getting rid of chicken lice was by dusting with dry sodium fluoride. It was effective, but in the case of large flocks it was slow and wasteful, a great deal of the dusting material being inevitably lost. Recent dipping experiments proved successful, and the results promise a sure and speedy means of getting rid of one of the worst pests of poultry.

UP-TO-DATE SUMMER HOUSES

Colony Plan of Housing Poultry May Be Adopted to Advantage on a Great Number of Farms.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The curtain-front or partial open-front house is conceded to be the best type for most sections. The colony plan of housing poultry may be adopted to advantage on many farms. This system does away with the danger of tainted soil.

The roosts should be built on the same level, 3 feet from the floor, with a dropping board about 6 inches below them. Good roosts may be made of 2 by 2 inch material with the upper edges rounded.

The nests may be placed on the side walls or under the dropping boards. It is best to have them darkened, as the hens prefer a secluded place in which to lay.

POULTRY NOTES

Let the hens help themselves to a dry mash.

• • •

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages.

• • •

Ship or deliver eggs at least twice or three times weekly.

• • •

Cull the flock so as to eliminate the early molters and other unprofitable producers.

• • •

Infertile eggs will withstand marketing conditions much better than fertile eggs.

• • •

Market hens which you do not wish to carry longer as soon as they stop laying and begin to molt in the late summer or fall.

"Ain't That the Truth?"

Francis was having a heart to heart talk with his grandmother. She was trying to impress upon him the importance of learning something every day. His reply was: "Take it from me, grandma, little boys know lots of things grandmas don't know anything about."

COPS READY FOR CO. M TEAM

After carefully trying out each member of the "force," Chief J. Allan Wood, manager of the police indoor baseball team, has finally selected a team which will go up against the fast team of Company M on Friday evening at the armory. Carl Preston, manager of the Company M team, is confident that he will bring his team through the fray and be able to report "no casualties," but reinforcements in the way of several substitutes will be found in reserve on Friday evening ready to jump into the battle at the first sign of trouble on the "line."

The receipts will go to the Company M charity fund.

For several days past the members of Company M have been busy at secret practice and the sharp "crack" which has disturbed the residents living in the vicinity of the armory was not the soldier boys at target practice but the sound of the hickory punishing the ball. A glance over the lineup of the military team will show each position filled with an expert. Captain Behrens, of the Company M team, will play in the center field position and if the "cops" get lining them out too fast it is rumored that he will cover that position on one of his fastest Indian motorcycles.

Manager Wood, of the police team, when seen by a reporter refused to discuss the game other than to say that the game was a "cinch" and his men were so used to catching everything they went after that he felt sure they would find no difficulty Friday evening to catch anything that came their way. However, the "cops" have been putting in long hours in practice when off duty.

The lineup of the teams as announced by the managers.

Police—Connelly, cf; Simpson, 3b; Phianey, p and 1b, Hanley, p and 1b; Kuehn, c, Healy, 2b; Chief Wood, ss, Keresman, 1ss; Camp, rf; Welch, lf.

Company M—Giles c, Crosby p; Hagenlocker, p; First Sergeant Mullin, 1b; Van Wagonen, 1b; Kieffer or Smith, 2b; Lawson, 3b, Gerhardt, ss, Weeks, 1ss; Preston, rf; Behrens, cf; Halloran, lf.

Dancing will follow the game with music supplied by Curt Shurter's orchestra.

SEARCH FOR MISS HOXIE'S SLAYER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 3.—Following the brutal murder of Miss Ream Constance Hoxie, a beautiful 17 year old girl, in her home in a fashionable apartment house near Central Park West, while the phonograph was kept playing jazz music to deaden other sounds, the police today threw out a dragnet for a man of the following description: Age, about thirty-five; medium build; black mustache and hair; swarthy complexion; believed to be a foreigner.

The girl had been beaten to death. When the body was found it was kneeling at the side of a bed, as though in prayer, with the head resting upon folded arms. There were bloodstains upon the floor of the room and hallway indicating that Miss Hoxie had struggled hard for her life.

Mrs. Robert S. Hoxie, the girl's mother, is in New Orleans for her health and during her absence some of the rooms of the apartment were sub-let to lodgers. It is believed by the police that the crime was committed by a man who applied at the apartment house late Monday, saying he was seeking a room.

The body was found by a neighbor and while the police were making their initial investigation, Ernest Knoch, conductor of the Chicago Opera Company, telephoned inquiries about a room. He was summoned to the house where he told the detectives he had visited the Hoxie apartment at one o'clock Monday afternoon and conversed with Miss Hoxie about terms. This enabled the police to fix the time of the murder between one o'clock and 3, when the crime was discovered.

The Hoxie family came here two months ago from New Haven, Conn., where Robert Hoxie has been engaged in war work.

The police declared that there were indications that the murder had been committed by a degenerate.

Winners Meet Wednesday.

CANTINE MILL CLOSED BY STRIKE

Employes Demand 60 Cents An Hour With An Eight Hour Day—Have Been Getting 40 Cents An Hour And 12-Hour Day.

The employes of the Martin Cantine Company at Saugerties have gone on a strike, and the factory is shut down in consequence. The strike began with the "coaters" who walked out on Saturday. Monday morning the "calender men" joined the "coaters" and but six of the sixteen machines of the company were in operation

As a result of these conditions the factory shut down at noon. The strikers have been receiving 40 cents an hour for a 12 hour day and a ten per cent bonus on their earnings They now demand 60 cents an hour with an eight hour day and the ten per cent bonus, and also time and a half for overtime.

The strikers gathered about in groups on the streets, Monday afternoon and they attracted much attention A meeting was also held in the Red Men's hall where the strikers discussed their grievances

YANKEE DOODLE HERE NEXT WEEK

One of the features of the big American Legion minstrel show at the Kingston Opera House next Monday and Tuesday will be the military burlesque, "Yankee Doodle," which closes the olio of the show In the sketch will be introduced some of the latest musical numbers "Bill" Newkirk as Captain Brown, Edward J. Perry as Major Clement, Tommy Mattay as Isidor Cohen, and John Parisi as Sambo Johnson, are but a few of those who take part in this military sketch. The soldiers and sailors will be assisted by about ten of the prominent young women of the city. Tickets for the big show may now be obtained of members of the Legion or at the store of Ralph Crouthamel at 619 Broadway, of R. C. Dittus on lower Broadway, or at Brinnier & Carey's office on John street.

GAVE "SHOW" UNDER GUARD

Peculiar Experience of American Musical Comedy Company in the City of Vladivostok.

A belated story of how an American musical comedy company which had volunteered to give an entertainment for the troops at Vladivostok was caught in that city while the "reds" held sway, has been received by the Knights of Columbus from Garry McGarry, who is in charge of the welfare activities of the order in Siberia. The troupe was in charge of W. R. Bandvard and had come from China to the Russian seaport, where they were held up for several weeks awaiting a steamer.

During their stay, every one went around with a revolver, and the city took on the appearance of a western "boom" town in pioneer days. During the period the bolsheviki killed about 22 persons, and many of the actors had narrow escapes. Several of the women actresses had to be taken to and from the theater guarded by a squad of allied soldiers, and at the hotel where they stayed a guard was constantly posted. However, the American troupe "carried on" for the doughboys amid all the panoply of war and revolution. There were armed soldiers inside the theater, outside, behind the scenes, and in the box office. All the audience brought their rifles with them or carried side arms and hand grenades.—Chicago Post.

SCORPION ON BABOON'S MENU

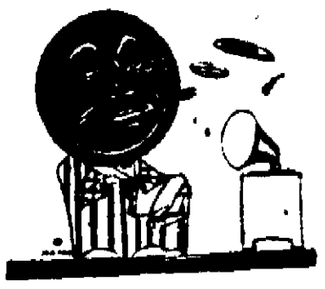
Animal Seems to Consider Insect a Delicacy and Consumes It With Much Relish.

The chacma baboon of South Africa is very partial to certain kinds of animal food—scorpions, spiders, centipedes, insects, lizards and the eggs of wild birds all being eaten with relish.

The scorpion is evidently regarded as a tidbit. If one is released near a captive baboon, the latter will hold its hand extended over the prey until a suitable opportunity for attack offers. Then the hand will descend with a sweeping slap, which is followed by a swift, circular, rubbing motion. This disables the scorpion, which is then picked up and carefully examined until the sting is located. The latter is then picked out between finger and thumb and thrown away as far as possible, after which the scorpion is munched with every appearance of satisfaction.—William C. Scully, in Atlantic Monthly.

Harmless Superstitions.

Everybody is superstitious and generally our superstitions are trivial and do no harm. To carry a coin in the pocket for luck; to comment about seeing the moon over the left shoulder; to refuse to walk under a ladder; to believe that it is bad luck to turn back; to make a wish at the appearance of the first star of the evening; to suppose it is not well to break a mirror, which it isn't well to do. But the point is, everybody is superstitious, regardless of what he says about it. He may not really know that he is superstitious; he may be known to be believing that he is not. But the first reception that superstition was bred into the race away back in the jungle, where traps were understood, where importance was attached to the shape of the clouds, where trees and stones and mountains and rivers had a personality—and we can't get it out of the system.



Get These Records

Well, we tried over the new batch of February hits last night, my head salesman and I, and to hear us argue about the different records, you'd think we never agreed upon anything!

"GIVE me this one every time" said he as he played his favorite again for the third time, "a great singer, a great song—it has my vote!" "A Ship Without a Sail"

"EVERY time you hear this violin record it sounds better than before," was my comeback." "It's going to be this month's best seller." "Romance."

THEN we argued back and forth. He admitted mine was a wonder and I had to concede that his choice was next best to mine. To hear us you'd have thought we were debating the League of Nations or the Irish question As a matter of fact, when all the records are so good, the "best" one is a matter of taste

THERE may be some who'd rather hear a melodious ballad than the finest symphony orchestra:—"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny"

HOWEVER, if you like symphony orchestras, here's a record like a one way ticket to Olympus, among the gods:— "Invitation to the Waltz."

EVERYBODY wants the new popular hits while they're new! My head salesman played this one about six times last night and then bought it himself:— "By-Lo."

"SOMETHING about a dreamy waltz tune that gets me every time," he continued. "I have to buy this one, too!" And he did: "On Miama Shore."

ENTHUSIASM on the slide trombone—inspiration on the saxophone—consternation on the piano—determination on the drum that's JAZZ! We both agreed this record sent forth the weirdest collection of sounds ever heard outside of a zoo:—"Fidgety Feet."

REMEMBER "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee;" Here's another "down South" song that's JAZZ! We both agreed this West mighty fast:—"Medley Southern Songs."

EVERY Broadway dance orchestra is playing this one—and when they finish, the dancers want to hear it all over again:—"Taxi."

COLLECTING laughs is the easiest thing this record does. There'll be a million on its score card before youve had it a month:—— "You'd Be Surprised."

OLD songs sometimes seem better than any of the new ones. Here's one that will bring back happy memories:—"Old Black Joe."

ROSES, moonlight, and summertime—they all come to mind as you listen to this beautiful song of youth and love:—"While Others Are Building Castles."

DANCERS need plenty of records, because they'll keep it up for hours when they get started Here's a fox trot to keep them busy: —"Peggy."

SERVICE is more than a word with us—it's a pleasant reality. Plenty of comfortable, quiet booths, prompt attention the moment you enter, expert salesmen who can find just what you want and find it quickly—these are features that keep our old customers, and bring new ones every day. Will you be one of the new ones? Today is a good day! Tear out this ad and bring it with you.

They buy SALANUT not only for its superior quality, but because it is cheaper.

Shortening is an important item in food costs. Every day it is used in baking, frying or deep frying. In its fluid form it is most economical.

A pint is a pound. Every drop is used.

CORN BREAD:

2 tablespoons SALANUT	2 cups cornmeal
1 tablespoon syrup	¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt	1 cup milk
2 teaspoons baking powder	2 eggs

Mix corn meal, flour, salt and baking powder with well beaten eggs, SALANUT, milk and syrup. Pour into an oiled pan, bake in a quick oven. Serve hot.

GRONNA ATTACKS WHEAT CONTROL

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, Feb. 3.—Characterizing the wheat market as an "orgy of speculation," Senator Gronna, of North Dakota, chairman of the senate agriculture committee today charged that "everything done by the food administration in the control of wheat situation was in favor of the middle man and to the detriment of the farmer."

"There is considerable political significance to this," Senator Gronna declared. "Everything done by Wheat Comptroller Barnes was known to Herbert Hoover, food administrator. Their administration of the food administration was so notably in variance with the spirit and letter of the food control law that I will today or tomorrow introduce a bill repealing the act and wiping out the entire office."

Senator Gronna referred to secret testimony by Barnes before the senate agriculture committee.

"I have never made that testimony public but am prepared to do so now," Gronna said.

"Barnes predicted that the wheat price would go down as soon as the foreign embargo was lifted. I told him the world needed wheat and that prices would go up.

"I have charts taken of official figures that will show my contention was right. Barnes was given authority through Hoover and the food administration and the law to purchase wheat at a minimum price. He was given no authority to fix the sale price. This he did through his licensing system which gave aid to the foreigners and little relief to the people of this country.

"As I charged in the senate yesterday, the farmers of the United States lost two billion dollars in wheat. He has made them curtail grain acreage for the winter crop forty per cent. This will force prices higher when the crop returns short and the world experiences the greatest need for wheat in its history.

"The appeal of Hoover in his endeavor to reach the women voters is to the housewives. They are paying higher prices for bread while the farmer was left to sell his crop at the fixed price before speculation and the announcement of Barnes that the wheat embargo would be lifted forced prices up.

"I am in favor of turning the whole wheat control office out and letting Mr. Barnes go back to his business. I will urge the bill I will introduce for this end."

60 COMPENSATION CLAIMS HEARD

Deputy Compensation Commissioner W. A. Abbott of the State Industrial Commission had a big calendar of cases before him for a hearing today at the supervisors' room at the court house, the cases numbering about sixty. A number of claimants for compensation lost a part of one or more fingers through accidents and received awards.

In the claims of Sanford Van Deusen and Edgar Conklin, employes of the Canfield Supply Company, the cases were closed, and decision reserved by Commissioner Abbott. The two men narrowly escaped death last September while returning from the Astor estate at Rhinebeck to the shop on the Strand. They had taken a short cut home, much used by other mechanics across the trestle of the Central New England railroad and before they got across the train was upon them. To save their lives they jumped. Van Deusen was the more seriously injured of the two and for several weeks hung between life and death at the Kingston City Hospital. Conklin was also badly hurt, and neither man has been able to work since the accident. The Canfield Company carries Workmen's compensation in the state fund. The state fund raised the question as to whether the accident happened in the course of the men's employment or whether they had quit work for day. It was proved that neither man had completed a day's work but were on the way to the shop to report at the time. The evidence of Mr. Van Deusen was taken at this morning's session. It was similar to that given by Mr. Conklin at a previous hearing. The State produced the town superintendent of Rhinebeck and a man named Wheeler to prove that the railroad track was not a short cut to the ferry station. Wheeler claimed he had used both the track and the road and in his opinion the road was shorter, but how much he was unable to say. It was brought out through Wheeler by Mayor Canfield, attorney for the claimants, that he, Wheeler, had seen many men walk the trestle and he had done it himself. The town superintendent was unable to say how much shorter the road was if any.

Otto H. Lange of this city, a machinist's apprentice employed at the shop of A. R. King Manufacturing Company and who is 18 years of age, had the end of his index finger amputated. He was getting $2 a day and as he is an intelligent young man and according to the statement of his employer, Harold F. King would have become a skilled machinist. Commissioner Abbott increased the wage rate as the law allows from two to five dollars a day the prevailing rate for machanists and awarded Lange $690 or at the rate of $15 a week, for 46 weeks. He has been getting $7.69 a week and the difference of $6.69 a week is to be made up by the insurance company.

Hobert Bacon of Palenville had the end of one finger amputated and another finger smashed. He was awarded $12.69 for ten weeks each and the payments to continue for six weeks longer. The insurance company is to pay the doctor's bill.

William Fiull of this city, employed by the Canfield Supply Company, was another with the end of a finger cut off. He was awarded at the rate of $11.54 a week wage for 15 weeks and case closed.

Richard Wenzel of this city was injured on the knee and one foot by an adz falling on it while working at the D. J. Murphy boat yard on October 2. He was getting $5.40 a day while employed there. Wenzel is now working for the Kingston Cooperage Co., at $3.45 a day, being there since January 12. An examination was made by Dr. Stern, who reported total loss of great toe. He was awarded compensation at the rate of $7.63 a week, a difference between his compensation received at the time he was injured and what he is receiving now for a period of 29 weeks.

The death claim in the estate of Lionel Baker was awarded according to the law and case closed.

Sol D. Burger, employe board of water supply, was awarded $14 a week and case continued, he having broken his leg.

Gordon Gould, from up in the Kaaterskill country, did not appear but wrote a letter that he thought his case had been held open long enough and he could not afford to spend $2 to come to Kingston and be heard as to the nature of his disability. He thought that there was too much red tape and enough money had been spent for postage to pay his compensation. It was figured up his claim if a good one would entitle him to an award of $11.54 but there is a dispute about a similar case, the matter being before the court of appeals. Mr. Gould will have to wait until the disputed case is settled.

Charles Cazerine employed by Ramsey's piano action works, had received $115 and having returned to work, his case was closed.

Simon Priddle, represented by John M. Cashin, was awarded $45 being $15 for three weeks from January 1 and case continued until next hearing.

Milo Thorne, who injured ankle had been paid for half a week and returned to work and as he said he was suffering pain he was turned over to Dr. A. A. Stern, the doctor for the commission, to be examined.

Bernard Miller employed by Hendrick Brick Company, who had hand crushed October 4th, testified he was paid $2.50 a day. He was told to have Dr. Stern examine his injury and testify to its permanency and extent.

Irving Delamater who had also a finger cut on November 12th, was turned over to Dr. Stern for an examination.

A number of cases were closed and several continued, the parts making claim not appearing.

CITY'S LATEST CIGAR FACTORY

The Colonial Cigar Manufacturing Company Started in Business on the Strand on Monday—Now Employs Twenty and Will Employ More.

The Colonial Cigar Manufacturing Company, Kingston's latest cigar factory, started operations on Monday in the Cordts building at Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, with a force of twenty in charge of Superintendent Saul Longendyke. They manufacture the Bertone Garcia brand of cigars which retail at from 10 to 25 cents each. H. C. Mansky of New York is proprietor.

The new concern has leased the two upper floors of the Cordts building and has made a number of alterations and installed all modern conveniences and fire escapes. The rollers and bunchmakers are employed on the top floor. There is room enough to employ one hundred on this floor, and new machines will be added rapidly.

The second floor is used for the packing and shipping department of the plant. Both floors are extremely well lighted and ventilated, and everything that would add to the comfort of the employes has been installed. When running full force it will be one of the most modern plants along the Hudson river.

With the addition of this new cigar factory and the one recently opened at Foxhall and Hasbrouck avenues by Mr. Bach, Kingston is becoming the cigar making center of the Hudson river valley.

FOX RETIRES

From Hotel and Restaurant Business on the Strand

E. G. Fox, for the past several years in the hotel and restaurant business on the Strand, has retired from business and today the furniture was being removed from the building. Mr. Fox will reside at No. 39 Chambers street. The hotel, which is located at No. 41 East Strand, became a popular eating resort under the management of Amasa J. Ormerod who retired from active business several years ago and the business was taken over by Felix Koch, who was later succeeded by Mr. Fox. The hotel business was established about 1880.
